Nation Has No Choice
But to Fight on, Regardless of Way Battle Goes,
President Kallio Says.

MOSCOW, Feb. 15.—(Thursday)—(AP)—The Soviet high command early today announced the occupation of 16 additional Finnish defensive fortifications in the Red army drive on the Mannerheim line, making a total of 100 positions claimed to have been captured in the past six days. The nightly army communique said that eight of the 16 fortifications captured Wednesday were "iron and concrete artillery forts."

By WADE WERNER.
HELSINKI, Feb. 14.—(AP)—Finland, calling more men to the colors and still holding an unbroken Mannerheim line against the greatest assaults since the World War, has no choice but to fight on, regardless of how the battle goes, President Kallio declared tonight.

"Everyone knows we are outnumbered fifty to one," the veteran chief executive told news correspondents.

"But the issues at stake are clear. We appreciate the sympathy shown us by Americans in our struggle to be free—indeed to live at all—but we really hope our cause might stir onlookers abroad to offer us material help."

Before the President spoke, Viipuri, Finland's Karelian city, was bombed repeatedly today by Soviet Russian planes, which also raided other Finnish civilian centers—Hamina, Lappeenranta, among them.

Russian gains in the Karelian snows were conceded by a Finnish army communique today after 14 days of battle.

The communique said "a few foremost positions" had been captured but that "at all other points enemy attacks were repulsed with heavy losses."

(Information obtained in experienced neutral quarters supports the claim of last night's Finnish communique that the Russian penetration of the Mannerheim line east of Summa has been shallow, not more than two-thirds of a mile, and is a small gain for the men and material which the Soviet forces threw into the action, according to the United Press.)

The class of 1897—men 42 and 43 years old—was the latest mustered to strengthen the nation's armed forces, admittedly fighting with their backs to the wall.

Hardships, Misery Trail Relief Family

Girl Reporter Sees the Heartbreaks in One Atlanta Home
Dependent on Charity; She Tells Its Story,
Typical of Countless Others.

Editor's Note: This is the first installment in a gripping story about the "Ansleys," a family whose human, compelling life-history has a counterpart in the lives of 10,000 other Atlantans, forced through no fault of their own to depend on public and private charities for food, clothing and shelter. Theirs too is a story of Atlanta. It brings Atlantans face to face with their neighbors. "The Ansleys." This series by Betty Mathis, who writes from the Ansley's home where she shared their hardships and their heart breaks, might make the reader say "But for the grace of God there go I."

By BETTY MATHIS.
This is the story of Eva Ansley, of her husband, Fred, and of her four children.
For obvious reasons the names are not their own, but the facts of their story are very real.

I know them to be true, because I have spent many hours in their home.
I will relate it without embellishment. I went to see the Ansleys because the city editor told me to find the facts about a typical family seeking public assistance in Atlanta. I arrived early in the morning to spend the day with them. This, and subsequent stories about them, will be exactly what I found. There will not be a line about what I thought, or how I felt, until my diary about relief is over. For now I am simply giving the story of "the thin layer of charity" which hangs over not scores, not hundreds, but thousands of families in this city of wealth and opulence.

This is how it is with the Ansleys:
They live in three rooms, cold, drafty and filled with the dirt left by many renters who came before them. For this space their rent is $10.50 each month. They have no electricity, because Eva says it is not a necessity.
They have no water, and have had none since the heavy snow. They were unable to pay their bill. They get water now by "borrowing" it from their slightly more fortunate neighbors and "packing" it home.
Their fuel, on the first day I went into their home, was eight

NAZI SUB THREAT DRAWS U. S. ANGER

Reich May Sink American Boats, Held by British; 2 Nations Blamed.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—(UP)—United States anger over Great Britain's detention of American vessels at blockade control ports was leveled with equal fury against Germany tonight, after the latter announced that "theoretically," at least, the ships in question might be considered fair prey for Nazi U-boats.

Indications were that if Germany torpedoed any American ship forced into belligerent waters by British blockade regulations, the United States would hold both Britain and the Nazi government responsible. American vessels are forbidden by the United States neutrality act to enter belligerent areas voluntarily.

Hardly had the German threat of reprisals for the British blockade reached this country than Secretary of State Cordell Hull went into hurried conference with Lord Lothian, the British ambassador, to discuss anew this nation's demands that Britain stop taking United States ships into forbidden war areas.

At a press conference earlier, Hull would not comment on the Nazi announcement, except to say that the rights of belligerents to sink neutral vessels are well defined under international law.
From Capitol Hill, Chairman Key Pittman, democrat, Nevada, of the influential senate foreign relations committee, described the German statement as "a violent and illegal threat," but added that it is "within the power of Great Britain, by ceasing its practice of forcing our ships into its ports, to remove this very grave danger."

Senator Guy M. Gillette, Democrat, Iowa, a member of Pittman's committee, described the German announcement as "hardly open to criticism."

Meanwhile, Germany today formally rejected as "without grounds" the protest of the American republics against violation of the American "safety zone" by belligerent warships.

Britain and France replied previously, rejecting the safety zone unless German warships could be kept out of the American coastal waters. The German note declared that Germany would be prepared for further discussions on the subject, but added that Germany could see no hope in further discussion of the plan unless the attitudes of Britain and France were revised.

MAESTRI NAMED IN HOT OIL REPORT

Department of Interior Says New Orleans Mayor Got Huge Profit.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 14.—(AP)—A Department of Interior report which stated Mayor Robert S. Maestri, of New Orleans, derived "large profits" from a half interest in an oil company he permitted to produce unauthorized excesses of petroleum while he was commissioner of state conservation, was made public here tonight.

Maestri is the dominant power in the state political machine, head of the old regular Democratic Association which controls New Orleans, and political ally of Governor Earl K. Long, whom he is backing against Sam H. Jones, "reform candidate," in a stiff Democratic gubernatorial runoff primary to be held next Tuesday.

Maestri's office said the mayor had no comment to make.

Assistant Attorney General O. John Rogge, in charge of the federal probe of Louisiana affairs, and United States Attorney R. A. Viosca made public the Department of Interior's report of its investigation into alleged "hot oil" violations in the state.

Rogge and Viosca said prosecution of Maestri under the Connally (hot oil) act could "not be successfully maintained" because no federal statute has been found which covers failure of state officials to enforce state law.

Laws Scanned.
They added, however, the departments of justice and interior were continuing a study of other federal statutes.

The Connally act prohibits shipment in interstate or foreign commerce of any oil produced in excess of amounts authorized by the statutes, orders or regulations of states having conservation laws.

Caldwell Starts Trip TO ATLANTA PRISON

MONROE, La., Feb. 14.—(AP)—George Caldwell, former Louisiana State University construction superintendent, started for Atlanta tonight to serve four years in the federal penitentiary there on mail fraud charges.

Caldwell pleaded guilty Tuesday to entering into an agreement with the W. J. Riley Plumbing and Heating Company of Monroe, for a rebate on rebuilding contracts with the university,

PLAN FOR KILLING EXCESS ON WATER BILLS IS REJECTED

Council Committee Substitutes Its Own System of 'Relief' for Increases Caused by Cold Wave.

City council's water committee yesterday rejected a council move to write off excess water bills estimated at $85,000 caused by January's subfreezing temperatures, and submitted its own system of "relief."

Under committee action, excess will be handled on the following basis:

1. If a bill exceeds $15 for the month of January and if the increase over normal consumption was caused by bursted water pipes due to freezing weather, the committee will recommend to council that two-thirds of the excess be written off.

2. If, however, the bill is less than $15, or if the excess was caused because occupants of the place served by the meter turned water on and allowed it to run so that the water pipes would not freeze, the committee will recommend only 50 per cent of the excess be written off.

About 250 petitions for reductions because of excesses, most of them caused by bursting water pipes, were filed with the committee yesterday, and relief was recommended on the basis adopted by the committee.

A committee from the Atlanta Real Estate Board, headed by W. J. Hogan, past president, appeared with a request that the committee write off water bill excesses for January.

Others Among Group.
Others among the group were W. B. Reeves, E. F. Congdon, Edward Chapman Sr. and S. D. Wall. When they were informed of the committee's action, they appeared satisfied.

The 250 who filed petitions yesterday were only a "starter," W. Zode Smith, general manager of the waterworks department, said yesterday. He estimated that about 85 per cent of the 60,000 meters of the department will show excesses for January.

Under committee instructions, he is to assign men from the department to check every bill individually and then to survey the premises of petitioners to see that all leaks have been stopped.

Opposes Compromise.
Informed of the committee's action, Councilman John A. White, co-author of the council resolution asking that 100 per cent relief be given users of city water where the excess was caused by "Providence," said he will not vote for any compromise on his original stand.

Court Decides Case First Filed in 1908

Chief Justice Reid Writes Decision in Suit Which Started When He Was 10-Year-Old Boy and Other Members of Tribunal Were Youths.

By RALPH MCGILL.
When Chief Justice Charles S. Reid, of the Georgia supreme court, was a 10-year-old, bare-foot boy in the mountains of north Georgia, a lawsuit was filed in the city court at Monroe.

Yesterday afternoon a decision reached the clerk's office in the supreme court.

It was written by Chief Justice Reid.
It disposed of the case which was first before a court in 1908 when the present chief justice was but 10 years of age.

It invoked an act of 1845, one but rarely employed.
Concurring were Associate Justice Duckworth, who also was a Georgia boy of about 10 years of

BEER INDUSTRY TO POLICE SELF

'Clean Up or Close Up' Policy in Force; Judge Wood To Direct Work.

With Judge John S. Wood, of Canton, at the helm, the beer industry of Georgia here yesterday launched a "clean up or close up" self-regulation program, aimed at flagrant law violators among the state's more than 3,000 retail beer outlets.

Formation of a new organization known as the Brewers and Beer Distributors' Committee of Georgia took place at a meeting of 43 beer distributors and brewers, representing about 98 per cent of the industry in this state. The move won immediate praise from Governor Rivers as "definitely in the public interest."

Full-Time Director.
The committee appointed Judge Wood, who is widely known throughout the state, as full-time state director of Georgia's beer industry, which employs nearly 10,000 persons and pays more than $10,000,000 annually in state taxes and wages.

It also elected an executive committee composed of the following distributors and brewers: M. W. Tift, Albany; Joseph J. Fine, Atlanta; Walter C. Pitner, Athens; Henry Fedderwitz, Savannah; H. M. Johnson, Macon; F. G. Gordon, vice president of the Atlantic company, Atlanta; D. W. McKay, vice president and general manager, Southern Brewing company, Tampa; William J. Huster, president of Burger Brewing company, Cincinnati; Frank Fehr,

McNutt Is 'at Least Second' In Georgia, Manager Says

Well Satisfied With Brief Visit to State, Frank McHale Declares; Predicts Nomination on First Ballot If F. D. R. Doesn't Run.

Frank McHale, Paul V. McNutt's presidential campaign manager, spent yesterday in Atlanta and left last night saying he was "assured that Governor McNutt is at least the second choice of practically every political leader in Georgia."

The portly Indianapolis lawyer, who is Democratic national committeeman for Indiana and who has steered McNutt's political ship since its keel first was laid, spent the day conferring with various party chiefs of the state.

"I am well satisfied with my visit to Georgia, brief though it has been," the Hoosier leader said. "I contacted a large number of leaders, representing practically all factions, and find in them a strong sentiment for Governor McNutt in the event Mr. Roosevelt is not a candidate. And Mr. McNutt's campaign is based on the proposition that the President does not want a third term."

McHale said he had set up organizations in 35 states. "In 31 of these 35 states McNutt either is first or second choice," he declared. "He will be nominated on the first ballot if President Roosevelt declines to run. And what's more, he will be elected overwhelmingly."

Second choice work is the McNutt strategy. When the state commander of the American Legion won the post of national commander at the San Antonio convention he did it by obtaining second choice pledges which were turned into votes when no first choice candidate obtained a majority. He won the Democratic nomination for Governor of Indiana the same way a few years later.

McNutt now heads the national social security program. Previously he served as high commissioner of the Philippines.

"He is the only man in the Roosevelt administration trained to carry forward the social security program and no man is better fitted to continue the President's successful foreign policy."

Permits to Fly Asked For Expectant Mothers

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—(AP)—A petition to let expectant mothers fly airplanes has been presented to the Civil Aeronautics Authority by a woman who has had three children and has flown 1,000 hours since 1928.

In letters from her attorney to the CAA made public today, Mrs. Betty H. Gillies, of Syosset, N. Y., president of the Ninety-Nines, an organization of women flyers, contended that pregnancy is not a "physical deficiency" or "abnormality," as held by the CAA. Opinions of five doctors accompanied the petition. On the other side, the CAA arrayed contrary medical opinions holding that flying during pregnancy might be unwise.

100-MILE WIND BLOWS OVER N. Y.; ROADS BLOCKED

Snowdrifts 20 Feet Deep in Some Sections; Rain Sleet and Dense Fog Add to Danger and Misery.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—(AP)—The worst blizzard of the year pounded the Atlantic seaboard all day and tonight with a blinding mixture of snow, rain, sleet, wind, and fog.

The storm, screaming up from the south and funneling as it spread, reached a 100-mile-and-hour crescendo atop the Empire State building and dropped a burden of deepening snow and ice over a dozen states.

The freezing gale winds, strung east since the 1938 hurricane, ripped across Long Island and New England, left a trail of traffic deaths and wrecked power lines and hauled shipping. The storm blocked highways with snowdrifts up to 20 feet deep and grounded commercial air traffic from Ohio to Boston.

Hundreds Hurt.
Hundreds were hurt in storm accidents. In New York City, faced with the possibility of its most serious traffic tieup in years, emergency police details were kept busy caring for more than 100 injured. A wind gust swept one man to his death from a fourth-floor scaffolding on the criminal courts building. A woman, blown against a building in the financial district, suffered a fractured skull.

Hundreds of highway workers equipped with snow plows fought a losing battle to keep main roads open, but day-long drifts had stopped traffic in sections of New Jersey, New York, New England, Pennsylvania and Ohio. Highways still open were so ice-glazed and snow-jammed that cars moved at snail's pace.

Drivers Marooned.
Buses ran hours behind schedule in mountainous districts, where travel was particularly hazardous, and hundreds of marooned motorists abandoned their cars and trudged through hip-deep drifts to farmhouse shelters.

The National Broadcasting Company reported power failures resulting from storm-damaged wires had forced its two networks off the air 28 times during the day for periods ranging from three seconds to 12 minutes.

Forecasts indicated clearing skies and dipping temperatures over most of the storm area tomorrow.

In Washington a three-inch snow and high winds snarled traffic. Schools and some government offices closed early.

Seventy-two-mile an hour gale gusts were reported at the Roanoke City (Va.) airport, and ice curtailed highway travel in some sections of the state. Four inches of snow fell at Winchester, in northwest Virginia.

The blizzard was the most severe to strike New York City since the Thanksgiving night storm in 1938, and accidents became so numerous that four major hospitals for several hours refused to send ambulances except in the most serious cases.

Florida Expects Freezing Today

LAKELAND, Fla., Feb. 14.—(AP)—The Federal-State Frost Warning Service predicted the nation's newest cold wave will send the mercury tumbling to the freezing point tonight far down the peninsula of Florida.

Strong winds generally quieted down during today and may lull at midnight causing heavy frost deposits as far south as the everglades.

Lewisohn Admits He Is Father of 6-Year-Old Boy

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—(P)—Gray-haired Ludwig Lewisohn acknowledged today in a courtroom where his bride of a week sat as a smiling spectator that he was the father of a 6-year-old boy born out of wedlock to Thelma Bowman Spear, concert singer.

The 56-year-old author was ordered by Judge Alvah W. Burlingame to pay Miss Spear $30 a week for the boy's support.

When the case was disposed of, Lewisohn's 31-year-old bride, wearing a sealskin coat, called to him:

"Come here, precious. You are having a tough time of it."

Miss Spear emerged tearfully from the courtroom.

"I gave up my operatic career for him," she said bitterly. "I paid for his divorce (from his first wife) and I gave him a child."

Bandmen's Sweetheart

Katherine Barry, 16-year-old student at Fulton High school, is the sweetheart of the school's military band. Miss Barry, who tips the scales at 100 pounds and is only five feet tall, won the boys' vote of approval over her sister students recently when she was elected 1940 sponsor of the band.

BARNEY TAYLOR, 60, FOUND DEAD AT HOME

Investigating officers said death apparently was from natural causes. An inquest will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the Barrett Funeral Home.

FAT CATTLE SHOW SET FOR APRIL 16-17

4-H Club Members, Future Farmers To Assemble Here, Seek Prizes.

Atlanta's Fifth Annual Fat Cattle Show will be held Tuesday and Wednesday, April 16 and 17, members of the live stock committee of the Chamber of Commerce decided yesterday in formulating plans for the event.

Several hundred 4-H Club boys and girls and Future Farmers of America will compete for cash prizes totaling $700. This year, for the first time, winners of the grand champion and grand reserve champion awards will be presented with watches instead of loving cups.

Cully A. Cobb, chairman of the committee, appointed S. D. Truitt, Fulton county agent; H. T. McKown, R. E. Davis, T. G. Walters, G. V. Cunningham, and Roy Ulrich to set up 15 subcommittees to complete arrangements for the show.

court before which it will be argued Monday morning.

Governor Rivers spent some time yesterday conferring with Attorney General A. M. Hall but whether the Miller suit was discussed could not be learned.

Judge Deaver having decided to sit on the case alone instead of with two fellow judges, Arnall automatically was taken out of the case unless instructed to appear by Governor Rivers. If the attorney general has been directed to appear the fact has not been made known. In cases before a single-judge court the federal law does not require the attorney general of the state to appear.

Judge Deaver has set the Miller petition for an injunction for hearing at 2 o'clock, eastern standard time, today.

James A. Branch, chief of Miller's counsel, said he expected to go to Macon this morning. He said he "did not know" who, if anyone, would answer for the Governor and General Stoddard.

METHODIST HOSPITAL GROUP IS FORMED

CHICAGO, Feb. 14.—(P)—Formation of the National Methodist Hospitals and Homes Association, a new organization under auspices of the recently united Methodist church, was approved today.

The action was taken at the 22nd annual convention of the old National Association of Methodist Hospitals, Homes and Deaconess Work.

The new association embraces 234 hospitals, homes for the aged, children's homes and homes for working girls, having a total valuation of $150,000,000 including endowments.

Shake Hands in War on Illegal Beer Sales

Judge John S. Wood, of Canton, Ga., (left) state director of the Brewers' and Beer Distributors' Committee of Georgia, shakes hands with Colonel Frank Fehr, of Louisville, Ky., of the group's executive committee, following formation of the committee yesterday.

BEER INDUSTRY TO POLICE SELF

president Frank Fehr Brewing company, Louisville, and F. Reed Gossman, of Hudepohl Brewing company, Cincinnati.

"I see it as a forward step by the beer industry to meet its social responsibility, and the state will give its full co-operation," said Governor Rivers.

National Effort.

Opening of the Georgia campaign is part of a national program initiated and sponsored by the United Brewers' Industrial Foundation which has seen similar committees set up in Alabama, Arkansas, Kansas, Maine, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Tennessee, and West Virginia. The Foundation, which is the national public relations organization of the brewing industry, plans to launch its activities in five additional states this year.

Georgia was selected as one of the first states on the 1940 list because it was felt that great good could be accomplished here in the weeding out of undesirable retail beer outlets and because virtually every Georgia distributor pledged his hearty co-operation to the movement. The foundation's program is designed to safeguard beer's legal status, along the lines of strict self-regulation such as is practiced by the motion picture industry and organized baseball.

John A. Tye, prominent Atlanta lawyer and president of the Georgia Bar Association, in introducing Judge Wood to the organization meeting, said that he was impressed by the foundation's program of education through self-regulation.

Sympathy Voiced.

"I am entirely in sympathy with your program," said Tye, "and it should receive the unqualified approval of the public in John S. Wood, whom I have known for years, your organization has a man who is sincere and able."

In accepting his appointment as state director, Judge Wood pointed out the responsibility the beer industry owes to the public and stated that the beer business in Georgia welcomes regulation.

"Any outlets which may be violating the law will be contacted immediately upon receipt of a complaint," said Judge Wood, "so that we may first seek co-operation by explaining our purposes and our goal of better conditions in the beer industry."

"We want the co-operation of the retail establishment, but should our appeal be disregarded, then we will act, swiftly. We will instruct our members to refuse to sell beer to these flagrant violators and will ask Revenue Commissioner T. Grady Head, on behalf of the organized beer industry, to revoke the establishments' licenses."

To Be Firm.

"These are our weapons. We will use them only when we have exhausted all efforts to obtain friendly co-operation, but rest assured that we will use them when need be."

David E. Dunn, state director of the Brewers and Alabama Beer Distributors committee, told of the work in his state and traced the conditions which brought about the need for a self-regulatory program.

"The Alabama ABC board, which I formerly headed, received innumerable complaints about conditions existing at retail beer outlets," said Dunn, "and it was not until the Foundation's entrance into the state that we were able to do anything about it. Since that time conditions have improved immeasurably, and the committee has received numbers of voluntary letters praising its activities."

T. Howard Kelly, national public relations director of the United Brewers' Industrial Foundation, told the organization meeting here of the genesis of the self-regulation program and of the work in some of the other states.

"Self-regulation," said Mr. Kelly, "means much more than mere policing of the industry. It is a broad educational program, designed to inform not only the public but the industry itself of the necessity of correcting the evils surrounding the sale of beer."

Hear Speakers.

Other speakers on the program were Fehr, Huster, J. P. Armstrong representing the Hudepohl Brewing Company, and Gordon, all of whom praised the Foundation for its decision to enter Georgia this year. William I. Truby, field representative of the Foundation, and Joseph J. Fine, of Atlanta, who acted as chairman of the meeting.

Chairmen of "good conduct" committees, which will aid in enforcement work throughout the state, were named as follows: District 1—Harold Clotfelter, Rome; District 2—R. H. Hogg Jr., At-

Judge Wood brings to the post of state director a name widely known in Georgia. He has lived in Canton since his graduation from Mercer University in 1910. He entered public life in 1921, when he was elected solicitor general of the Blue Ridge circuit, and five years later was elected superior court judge in the same circuit. In 1931 he was elected to congress from the ninth congressional district and served for four years. Since serving in congress he has practiced law at Canton. Judge Wood was in the United States air corps in the World War and is a former commander of the Thomas M. Brady post of the American Legion at Canton.

Headquarters Here.

Headquarters of the Brewers and Beer Distributors' committee of Georgia have been established in the Hurt building here, and Eugene H. Hinton Jr., former member of The Atlanta Constitution news staff for a number of years, was named as public relations director. Mr. Hinton resigned as publicity director of the division of highway planning of the State Highway Department to accept his new post.

Two powerful weapons were placed in the hands of Judge Wood as he became director of the "clean up or close up" campaign—the legal right to instruct brewer and distributor members of his committee to shut off the supply of beer to law-violating retail outlets, and the authority to speak for the organized beer industry in calling on Revenue Commissioner Head to revoke the licenses of establishments which persist in breaking the law. The state director will work in close co-operation with Commissioner Head, who has praised the self-regulatory program and pledged his co-operation.

COURT CLOSES CASE FIRST FILED IN 1908

Steve R. Johnson, former Atlanta councilman and one-time superintendent of Grady hospital.

The case twice had been affirmed by the state court of appeals and the supreme court twice had rejected Felker's request to review the decision of the appellate courts.

The supreme court has established a magnificent record. Its individual members have combined to give the state of Georgia one of the finest records in the history of the state. It was fitting that the chief justice should have said, in the opinion, in speaking of the law's delays:

"The specter of the law's delay is difficult enough in ordinary circumstances with all the courts and the bar doing their best to dispatch and dispose of legal controversies."

Frivolous Grounds.

"When courts are used to evade judgments—especially when the effort is made on frivolous grounds—after full opportunity has been had for fair adjudication, we think this provision in the nature of a penalty is properly invoked."

"The motion (for damages) is therefore granted."

The case came before the city court at Monroe in 1908 as "Felker vs. Johnson." It was a simple suit on contract. Johnson had contracted to auction some property of Felker's.

The city court apparently was abolished and cases transferred. Not until 1935 was a superior court verdict returned in favor of Johnson. Felker appealed. Judge John B. Guerry affirmed the judgment and in his decision called attention to the long delay. Felker took out a writ and the supreme court sent it back. Before the judgment of the court of appeals was made the judgment of the lower court, Felker brought another writ of error. This was denied.

Other appeals followed and it was on the appeal to have the judgment set aside that the decision of yesterday was returned. The court referred to the appeal as "frivolous, vague and confusing."

Because of its unusual features, the filing of the suit when the chief justice who eventually was to write the decision was a boy of 10; the invoking of the act of 1845 providing for the imposition of damages for undue delay, all made the case one of the most unusual in recent years.

Whitley in Answer to Suit Defends His Road Materials

Georgia Contractor Challenges Inspection of Highways, Declaring Alabama Asphaltic Limestone Which He Sold Withstood Recent Heavy Freezes Without Damage.

John E. Whitley, Georgia road contractor, who was sued together with three former highway commissioners by the State of Georgia, LaGrange on Monday for $165,000, yesterday issued a written answer to the suit.

The reply defends the materials he used in road construction and compares the results of the recent cold wave upon the materials used by other companies.

The statement follows:

There have been several political lawsuits filed against me and my construction firm.

The federal government filed a criminal suit against me for violating the NIRA.

The federal government also filed an injunction against me for violating the NIRA, and tried to stop me from building roads in Georgia.

These cases were paraded in the press, with a great deal of publicity, and it is peculiar to note that they were filed in election years.

Of course, everyone is familiar with the outcome of these two cases. The NIRA was declared unconstitutional.

I noticed in this morning's Atlanta Constitution, on the front page, the account of another suit being filed against me by the Governor of Georgia, E. D. Rivers, for $165,000 for damaging the state highways.

This suit also joined the former members of the Highway Board, W. E. Wilburn, Max L. McRea and John Heck, as parties with me.

My answer to this suit is for them to go and look at the ma-

MAGICIANS' PRESIDENT MOVES THE 'SPIRITS'

WATERBURY, Conn., Feb. 14. (AP)—Maurice Chaudé, president of the Houdini assembly, American Society of Magicians, thinks spirits had something to do with his failure to get a quorum on the third floor of the Press Club for the annual meeting.

So, without the aid of mirrors, he levitated his missing members by ordering the bar moved up from the first floor.

The material rivers complains about is Alabama asphaltic limestone.

The recent freezes in Georgia have done millions of dollars of damages to the roads in Georgia. This damage could have been avoided if the proper material had been put on the roads at the time of building.

This Alabama asphaltic limestone withstood the freezes, and those roads where this material was used are not spewed up in Georgia. They will not have to spend one dollar to repair these roads.

I want to point out to you where to go and see some of these Alabama asphaltic limestone roads. Look at the road from Echeconnee to Fort Valley. Look at a portion of the road from Macon to Cochran, on the Cochran short route, where this Alabama asphaltic limestone was used and then look at the other portion where it was not used.

Road Spewed Up. You will see where the "tar-and-feather" stuff was used the road is spewed up—full of holes.

Where the Alabama asphaltic limestone was used, it is in perfect shape.

This Alabama asphaltic limestone was used on several other sections of the roads in Georgia, and without a single exception this material that I am sued about withstood the recent severe freezes, while the tar-and-feather roads sold by Hiram Wesley Evans have all busted up, although Hiram Wesley Evans' company got more for their material than this material that I am being sued about cost.

Hiram Wesley Evans swore before the investigating committee that he had a monopoly on all of the emulsion asphalt stuff that is sold in Georgia, and regardless of what company got the order, he got the gravel.

Look at the report of the investigating committee and see if these are not his exact words.

To Take Pictures. Who was Hiram Wesley Evans' silent partner? I will tell you who stayed in his office a long time while this soap and tar-and-feather emulsion was being sold: E. D. Rivers Jr.

Now, I want to tell E. D. Rivers Sr., the Governor of Georgia, one thing: I am going to have pictures of these roads taken and examined by competent engineers this week—and I am going to meet E. D. Rivers' large array of counsel at court. And I want Governor E. D. Rivers to be there, and not duck out on us.

I want to tell Governor E. D. Rivers and his cohorts something else: They know that there is nothing to this suit.

INSTRUMENTS SLASH WORK OF AIR PILOTS

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 14. (AP)—Major R. W. Schroeder, operations committee chairman of the Air Transport Association of America, says instruments are cutting the air line pilot's job to a minimum. Schroeder, United Airlines vice president, told the association, beginning its three-day annual convention yesterday: "The human factor is being instrumentalized out of existence. Soon the pilot will have an 'out' for every procedure—spare fuel, spare engines, spare airports, and spare instruments."

90-YEAR-OLD MAN EXERCISES EASY WAY

PERU, Ill., Feb. 14. (AP)—Henry Hoerner, who will be 90 years old on February 24, still believes in exercise—the easy way. He invented a bicycle-like apparatus which is operated by a motor. With his feet strapped to the pedals, he thus receives the exercising benefits of outdoor cycling without self-locomotion. "And I don't encounter the inconveniences of inclement weather either," Hoerner said.

WIFE LEARNS DIVORCE TAKES A LITTLE TIME

TULSA, Feb. 14. (AP)—A young woman stormed into the district court clerk's office and demanded: "Give me a divorce!" The clerk, Paul Burney, suggested she have a lawyer file a petition for one. "Oh," she said, "I thought all you had to do was ask for it."

OWNER, LIKE CLOTHES, IS SENT TO CLEANERS

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Feb. 14. (AP)—Clarence Henke asked his sister whether she had seen his best suit. "Why, you sent it to the cleaners," she said. "No, I didn't." "Well, anyway," she continued, "early this week a man came to the door and said he was from the cleaners. I gave him the suit."

Syphilis Worse Than Polio in Toll Taken of Children, Conference Told

Pre-Marital Examinations of Parents Would Save 95 Per Cent of Now-Doomed Babies, Health Workers Meeting Here Say.

Infantile paralysis cripples thousands of children each year. Consequently its dangers are widely publicized, and great sums are subscribed to fight it.

Yet for every child stricken with infantile paralysis, there are 10 children facing death, blindness or insanity through the visitations of that old Biblical "sin of the father"—congenital syphilis.

Doesn't Depreciate. In making the point, Dr. R. A. Vonderlehr, youthful assistant surgeon general of the United States in charge of the division of venereal diseases, did not intend to depreciate the evils of infantile paralysis, or to decry the efforts being made at its control.

He merely intended to show, he said, how equally important it was to recognize the dangers of the even more prevalent disease, which, unlike infantile paralysis, can be kept from happening, and can be cured after it has occurred.

Two steps toward its control were taken yesterday at the conference of public health officers, doctors and nurses from 16 southern states when they went on record as favoring state legislation to require medical examination of both parents before marriage, and to require a similar test of all expectant mothers.

The pre-marital test, if required by law as it now is required in 19 states, would prevent the innocent spreading of social disease through marriage. The pre-natal test, if required by law as it now is required in 15 states, would allow 95 per cent of the babies now born diseased to be born in perfect health.

Modified in Wording. The resolutions were modified in their wording, urging such laws be passed only "after a favorable public opinion has been created and proper laboratory facilities have been made available."

Often, Dr. Vonderlehr pointed out, legislators appealed at the incidence of venereal disease in their states have passed such laws before public health laboratory facilities could carry the great burden of such tests. The question of money, he said, was important, for tests cost from 10 to 20 cents each, and a state with 50,000 marriages, requiring 100,000 tests, or 50,000 births, might find itself with a good law on the books and no funds with which to carry it out.

Both resolutions were introduced by Dr. William F. Snow, of New York, general director of the American Social Hygiene Association.

DOG TRAINING BOOK DOESN'T GET RESULTS

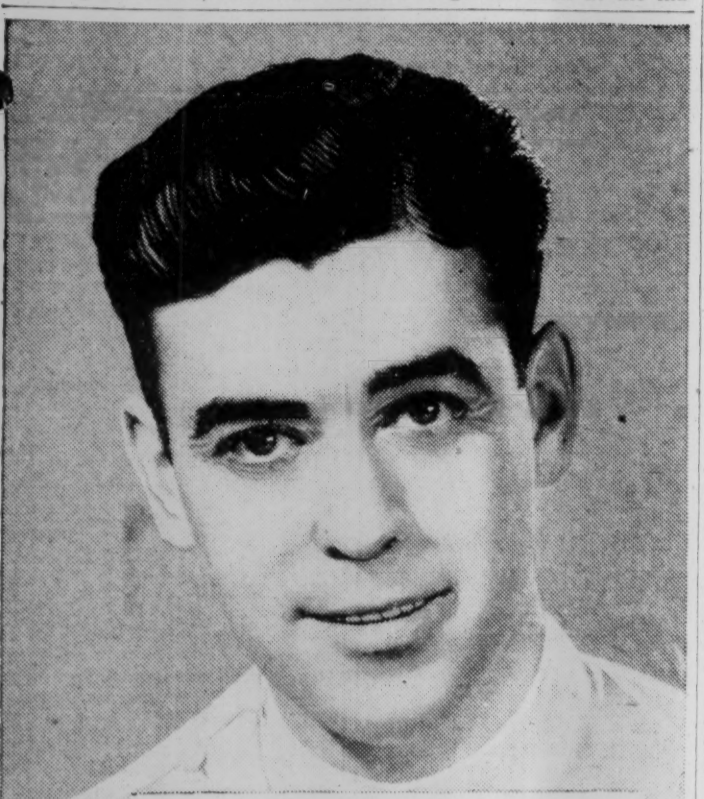

JOLIET, Ill., Feb. 14. (AP)—The young couple were profuse in their apologies for the condition of the book which they were returning to the library. It had been chewed by their dog. The book: "How to Train Your Dog."

OFFICERS WILL GET TRAINING IN SPRING

National Guard, Reserve Leaders To Go to Army Schools.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—(AP)—Secretary Woodring said today that 1,088 National Guard and reserve officers would be trained this spring at the army's command general staff school and 12 other schools, virtually doubling the number of such students in previous years. The additional guard and reserve officers will take the place of regular army officers who were sent back to duty with troops for the mass maneuvers already in progress in the south and west. Training schedules were shortened after the maneuvers were ordered last fall. Some of the new classes already have started. The schools, opening diets of new courses, and the number of officer students will include: Infantry school, Fort Benning, Ga., regular course, February 26, National Guard 232, reserves 160; tank course February 19, National Guard 18.

HEALTH ORDINANCE. MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., Feb. 14.—(AP)—Dr. J. H. Litton, health commissioner, has warned operators of stores, cafes, lunch counters and markets that enforcement of the new health ordinances here will begin tomorrow.

Plight of Finns' Brave Army Stirs 'Neutrals' To Speed Aid

England, France, U. S. Stirred, But Another Hope for Victory Lies in Norway and Sweden Joining War, Expert Says; Russian Victory Believed Still Far Away.

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON.
Associated Press Staff Writer.

Finnish troops are fighting with their backs to the wall against desperate and sustained Russian attacks on the Karelian isthmus; but it is a wall of incalculable natural reserve strength. The Finns' Mannerheim line admittedly has been dented by the Russians at terrific cost in blood. Yet the vagueness of Russian claims that scores of Finnish "forts" have been taken indicates that only scattered machine-gun or anti-tank gun outposts have changed hands as yet.

Finnish pleas to all friendly countries for quick aid against a powerful and ruthless foe may over-emphasize the immediate seriousness of the situation. The appeals stirred an immediate response in England. The Chamberlain government lifted the ban on British volunteers seeking service in Finland.

France also expedited moves to despatch contingencies of Polish or other refugee volunteers to Finland's aid. It even speeded up action in Washington on extension of American loans to Finland for non-military purposes.

Yet all of these moves are largely of a psychological nature. They tend to bolster Finnish will to resist rather than afford Finland any immediate and adequate military help.

Short of Norwegian and Swedish participation in the conflict as Finland's allies, followed by direct armed assistance from France and Britain, Finland's best hope is the fighting spirit of her army and the nature of the terrain of the whole Karelian isthmus. Not even a Russian breakthrough on the Mannerheim line there could decide the conflict.

Chiang Urged To Surrender
HONGKONG, Feb. 15.—(Thursday)—Japan's invading forces have addressed a proclamation to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek urging him to surrender because they declared, the Japanese now have won "sufficient areas in China" for establishment of the new order in east Asia.

Chiang's Chungking government today indicated what its reply would be by adopting plans to float munitions and reconstruction loans.

The Japanese proclamation elaborated: "In the future we will not expand our operations, but will await your offensive."

French Repulse Nazi Thrust
PARIS, Feb. 14.—(AP)—A section of German infantry made another stab at French lines west of the Saar river in sub-zero weather today, but the French high command said the thrust crumpled before French counter-fire.

At the same time the French announced that a German cargo boat, the name of which was not given, had been captured by French naval blockade forces and escorted to a French port.

Turks Discuss War Possibility
By EDWARD KENNEDY.
ISTANBUL, Feb. 14.—(AP)—The Turkish press turned sudden attention today to the strategic position of Soviet Russia's rich Caucasian oil fields lying along the Turkish frontier and openly discussed the possibility of war over them "by April."

Several newspapers featured reports that Germany was sending a large number of troops to the Caucasus to help Russia defend the oil supplies.

Editorial statements declared Turkey would regard any German-Russian threat to Rumania, Iran or Iraq—all having oil wells—as a threat to her own security, necessitating her immediate entry into the war.

Brazil To Protest Act of British
RIO DE JANEIRO, Feb. 14.—(AP)—Foreign Minister Oswaldo Aranha declared today that Brazil would lodge a protest with Great Britain as a result of destruction of the German freighter Wakama off Brazil's shores last Monday.

Aranha said a British cruiser which pursued the Wakama and made demands for its surrender within the 300-mile safety zone of the Americas acted contrary to the spirit of the Panama declaration.

Britons Allowed To Join Finns
LONDON, Feb. 14.—(AP)—Great Britain tonight put the approving seal of his majesty's government on the recruiting of British manpower for the armies of Finland and, in her own savage war at sea with Germany, pledged new gun protection for her own merchant mariners against the Nazi bomb blockade.

At the risk of a new strain on Anglo-Russian relations, already or 10 lumps of coal no bigger than a teacup, and sticks of wood which Eva or the children had picked up. During the ice storm in the first week of January, the Ansleys received three sacks of coal from the Department of Public Welfare. That long since has been used up.

Then they begged cardboard boxes from the grocery stores to burn in the tiny kitchen heater. Later, Alfred, 18, earned a quarter for changing a flat tire. He brought it to his mother. She decided heat at the moment was more important than food, and bought a burlap bag half-full of coal.

For food, there is mostly stale bread, given them each day by the Salvation Army. They have some oatmeal, graham flour and meal, obtained about the middle of January from the surplus commodity warehouse. There is no grease or baking powder to make bread.

There is no salt.

There are no vegetables or fruits.

There hasn't been an egg in the house for many weeks.

Fresh milk has been unknown to the family since December. Sugar, when they had it, was hoarded carefully.

Last of Beans.

The last of the dry beans, which were in a basket sent by their church, went almost a week ago. The church notified the Ansleys it can do no more for them because there are many others in the congregation in similar circumstances. The only other source of supplies comes from Grady hospital which furnishes canned milk to little Mary Lou.

She is very skinny, and dreadfully undernourished. They say she is being "built up" to undergo a tonsillectomy. The canned milk intended for Mary Lou is divided among the six of them—to soften the stale bread.

That is what they eat twice a day—milk and bread. They have no lunch.

The family consists of Eva, her husband, Fred, and the children. These are Alfred, 18; Herbert, 14; Frances, 12, and Mary Lou, who is eight. Alfred, Herbert and Frances are children of Eva's first husband; Mary Lou is Fred's child.

The six sleep in two sagging beds in the same room. They divide up, with Fred, Eva, and Mary Lou, in one bed; the two boys and Frances in the other. They own a third bed, but they have not used it since the cold weather began. There is not bedding enough to keep occupants of three beds warm. Even with three in each bed, they pile every coat, dress, sweater and pair of pants in the house on top of the covers to keep from freezing. The covers on each bed are blankets and ragged sheets. The blankets seem full of moth holes.

Eva is small; rather frail-looking. Her thin brown hair is skinned back from her lined face and pulled into a little knot the size of a biscuit at her neck.

Can Barely Write.
Eva went as far as the third grade in a country school. When she was big enough to pick worms from the tobacco plants on her parents' farm in Missouri, she left school. She barely can write her name. Reading is difficult. So much so, she has a hard time filling applications for public assistance.

She is deeply religious, praising the Lord or fearing Him in nearly every sentence. She gathers her brood about her to attend church every time the doors open. She shows no resentment that she can get no more help from the church.

Her conversation disclosed a fear of dishonesty among her children. Her greatest worry, she says, is that one of her hungry children may steal. She wonders, fearfully, if it is all right with the Lord for her to "knock on doors and ask for something to eat for my children."

She is touched deeply by the

Oh, by the Way, Bytheway Is 'in Bad' With the G-Men

Bob Charles Bytheway, whose last name, by the way, is pronounced "By The Way," was all tangled up with the United States government yesterday. The tangle was a charge that he impersonated a FBI agent while trying to collect a little debt from a young Atlanta man.

Richard G. Danner, special agent in charge of the G-men here, took Bytheway before United States Commissioner David J. Meyerhart yesterday, but a hearing on the case was postponed until Friday afternoon.

Bytheway, who is from Pittsburgh, got into town last Friday and started collecting from an adjustment agency he represented, federal men said. One young married man owed a bill of $18 for a watch bought from a mail misfortune of others, and in the section where she lives she sympathizes with others without any evidence of self-pity. Of some neighboring children she said: "Look at them poor little kids. I thank the Lord we ain't as bad off as lots of folks."

Eva's car distinguishes the step of each child in the hall. When each arrives home, she grabs and hugs him, or her, tightly. She seems reluctant to let them go. When they are outside, she goes frequently to the door to see if they are all right. She insists that they stay close to home.

Her husband, Fred, is rather silent. He is six feet tall, weighs 150 pounds; he doesn't look very husky. He is suffering from a sinus infection. Doctors say he is unable to do heavy labor. That is what they told him when he was examined for certification to WPA.

He says he doesn't want relief, but wants a job. Sixty dollars a month, he has figured, will get them along nicely and pay their back rent and past due installments on the furniture. He talks of saving a little, if he can find a job to pay him that $60.

Bewildered Fred.

Fred's education is even less than Eva's. As he talks about jobs being scarce for people without schooling, in the same breath, almost, he insists Eva's children shall go to school. Fred joins in the conversation only infrequently, but when he does, he talks mostly about sickness and death. Lighter topics seldom him. He obviously is bewildered.

Alfred shows resentment at being unable to get a job. He starts many sentences with: "What kind of a country is it that—?"

He is small, and his wind-burned cheeks and turned up nose make him look younger than 18. He is not quite five and a half feet tall and he weighs 120 pounds. He is respectful to his mother and stepfather. Alfred has a grammar school education.

Herbert, 14, is no bigger than many boys of 10. His face has a pale, pinched look, that makes him appear older. His blue eyes twinkle when he talks about the wagon he is going to build from packing boxes. What happiness and cheer there is in the house comes from Herbert. He is the only one who sings or plays with the neighborhood children.

He helps his mother by "packing" water, and runs errands—yet he is a source of great worry for Eva, because he has found that at 14 it is no longer compulsory that he go to school. He has announced calmly to the family that he never intends to go there again. This was followed by threats, scoldings, and whippings. He remains unchanged. He has played hockey a good deal, and he hasn't been in a schoolroom since his last birthday.

Pretty Frances.
Frances is 12, with dark hair, brown eyes, and round face. She is finishing the sixth grade, and plans to go on to high school next year. Her voice is soft and her manner pleasant. She has the Mary Lou is the possessor of an exceptionally bad set of tonsils. I looked at them. Without any medical training, I could see they should have been removed long ago. But she is too thin and too nervous to stand the operation. She shows no evidence of any knowledge of the worries which weigh down the family, and exhibits the adoration which she feels for each member of the group. Mary Lou needs to gain 13 pounds.

Believes in Fairies.
She shows the need of vitamin to combat nervousness. She cries so easily. Occasionally she lapses into baby talk. Among her surroundings, she still tries to believe in fairies. Mary Lou is in the third grade and says she "loves" school. There you have the Ansleys, and how I found them.

Go with me in subsequent stories, and spend more time in their home. Learn, as I did, something of their background, their efforts to obtain something to eat. Walk over miles of streets as I walked with Eva, visiting agency after agency asking only for food. Go with me tomorrow.

MRS. ROOSEVELT HEADS INTO STORM MINUS GALOSHES

President's Wife Stays Outside Steel Worker's Home, Doesn't Want to Mess Up Clean Floor.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Feb. 14.—(P)—The worst snowstorm to hit upstate New York this winter failed to deter Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt from her appointed rounds today.

She set out on a 60-mile automobile trip over wind-whipped, snow-drifted highways to Ithaca, where she speaks tomorrow at a Cornell University farm and home week session.

More than a foot of snow had fallen in Syracuse; as much or more awaited at Ithaca where schools were closed and bus traffic hampered.

"I always bring galoshes," she remarked as she halted briefly in a railroad station here on her arrival from New York. "But I always neglect to wear them. Well, I suppose I can change shoes in Ithaca."

From the station she went by automobile to Syracuse's new $4,000,000 housing project, where she rang the bell of the apartment of Steelworker John McCord.

"Oh, my goodness!" exclaimed Mrs. McCord as she opened the door. "Mrs. Roosevelt!"

The wife of the President asked how Mrs. McCord liked her new home. "It's delightful," said Mrs. McCord, "won't you step in?"

"No, my shoes are all snow-covered," replied Mrs. Roosevelt, a housewife herself who will speak tomorrow on "Hospitality in the White House." She added: "I don't want to mess up your floor."

Then she began the trip to Ithaca as the snow fell in renewed fury.

Ten miles out of Syracuse the automobile of pursuing reporters stalled in a drift. The First Lady's car plunged serenely on through the swirling snow.

Mrs. Roosevelt arrived in Ithaca a few hours later after a trying trip. She went immediately to the home of Miss Flora Rose, director of the school of home economics.

New England Hit By Nor'easter

BOSTON, Feb. 14.—(P)—With a howling wind reaching the highest velocity since the disastrous hurricane of 1938, a northeast blizzard swept New England tonight and sent coast guardsmen to the aid of at least six small vessels in distress.

For the first time in almost two years, all scheduled sailings from Boston harbor were canceled. Airplanes were grounded. Motorists were warned to keep off icy highways that were rapidly piling up with snow.

The city of Boston's institution steamer Michael Perkins, carrying nearly 200 visitors to a Harbor Island hospital and jail, tossed for more than an hour in the wind-swept harbor after her steering apparatus fouled. She was towed back to her inner harbor wharf.

Three Killed In Italy's Gale

ROME, Feb. 14.—(P)—Snow fell in Rome today for the third time this winter while wintry gales accounted for three deaths and six injury throughout Italy. There was a light earthquake in the Florence area, but no damage.

Alabama Area Hit by Tornado

LOWNDESBORO, Ala., Feb. 14.—(P)—This rural area was struck last night by a small tornado which demolished one dwelling and damaged several others. Only casualty was a boy slightly injured by flying debris.

Helpless Ship Flashes SOS

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—(P)—The tanker Aztec, caught in the blizzard whipping the Atlantic coast tonight, sent out an SOS from 50 miles southeast of Sandy Hook, Mackay radio reported. The call said: "Steering gear carried away; vessel helpless in full gale; all ships close by please help."

South Africa farmers are holding back cattle for higher prices. Malaysians have organized a hospital for wounded in London.

Without C. Jemel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pints of bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food may not digest. It may just decay in the bowels. C. Jemel blows up your stomach. You get constipated. You feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

High Winds, Deep Snow Take Broadway by Storm

The gay white way was white all right yesterday—under a blanket of snow. New York's Broadway and Times Square areas, ordinarily thronged, were windswept, snowy and bleak as a blizzard battered the city. The photo shows two women pedestrians in Times Square bucking wind and snow and finding the going tough.

Letup in Fight on Japanese Beetle Would Threaten Invasion of State

Experts Say Georgia Almost Free From Pest Which Eats Trees, Vines—But If U. S. Lifts Quarantine, He May Arrive Quickly.

A conference in Washington on February 27 is to determine whether the federal government is to withdraw its co-operation in the fight against the Japanese beetle, officials of the State Department of Entomology said yesterday.

All of this talk centered attention on the little bug. Where does he live? What does he eat? What kinds of trees does he attack?

Not in State Now.

Right now the Japanese beetle turns up his nose at Georgia. He is seen here only in comparatively rare instances. But he is waiting in near-by states for a choice occasion to make his debut. If the quarantine regulating the movement of plants and plant products from one state to another is withdrawn, that time may come.

Atlanta now takes some control measures with queer-shaped contraptions in different parts of the city—devices that look like good bug catchers. They are a part of the testing and control program. A few beetles have been found in East Point and in Druid Hills.

The Japanese beetle is a gaudy fellow. It is adorned with a brilliant green coat and has reddish-brown wing covers, and white spots on its abdomen.

Likes to Chew.

Like granddad, he likes to chew. Not tobacco, however, but leaves of apple, peach, plum, quince, cherry trees and raspberry, blueberry or grape vines.

Also on his preferred food list are such shade trees as linden, chestnut, horsechestnut, sassafras and elm. Buttonwood, willow, birch, Lombardy poplar, Norway maple and certain varieties of oak occasionally are attacked.

Entomologists say he is a reckless little fellow, and demands watching in Georgia.

TOWN IN TENNESSEE HAS MAYOR PROBLEM

MONTEREY, Tenn., Feb. 14.—(P)—Nobody, it seems, wants to be mayor of Monterey. An administrative problem was tossed into the lap of the city council when John W. Gill, 28-year-old law student at Cumberland University, quit as mayor.

The aldermen protested it was illegal for him to quit, even though he was elected without opposition when friends wrote his name on the ballot. Gill argued that as far as he was concerned, it was legal, so the council elected a new mayor, Columbus Uffelman, railroad man and long-time councilman. Uffelman didn't want the job, but at the last report he hadn't quit.

F. D. R. HEADS SOUTH FOR GULF FISHING

War Changes Vacation Jaunt From Atlantic to Southern Waters.

ABOARD PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S TRAIN HEADING SOUTH, Feb. 14.—(P)—President Roosevelt traveled southward out of a swirling snow storm tonight toward the tarpon waters of the Gulf of Mexico on a 10-day vacation.

His immediate destination was Pensacola, Fla., where the cruiser Tuscaloosa and two destroyers, the Lang and Jouett, are waiting. With the President were his customary fishing cronies, Brigadier-General E. M. Watson, his secretary and military aide, and Rear Admiral Ross L. McIntire, his physician.

The President's destination was not made known until after his trip had started. When the three newspapermen permitted to accompany him had deduced it was Pensacola, General Watson confirmed it, but there was no word as to where the President would cruise.

Considerations arising from the war probably were responsible for the secrecy, and also for the President's apparent intention to cruise in the Gulf of Mexico instead of in the Atlantic ocean, as he has done previously.

Boarding the Tuscaloosa, Mr. Roosevelt and his two companions might cruise southward along the Florida coast.

MAYOR LAGUARDIA TO VISIT AUGUSTA

AUGUSTA, Ga., Feb. 14.—(P)—Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia, of New York city, will be the principal speaker at the fourth annual Augusta fat cattle show and sale April 2-3.

The address will be made at the banquet held in connection with the Twin States Livestock Association's yearly auction.

LAUNDRY 'BURGLARIZED'

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., Feb. 14. Milledgeville police today were investigating the burglary of a laundry and dry cleaning plant here, Chief Frank Enoche disclosed. He said thieves rifled a cash register and a soft drink vender money box, but failed to obtain any loot. A large supply of clothing and laundry was undisturbed.

HOLY LAND EXHIBIT ARRIVES IN ATLANTA

Constitution Will Sponsor
Showing of Sacred Scenes
Beginning Feb. 20.

The Holy Land, a scale model of the real terrain over which Jesus and other Bible characters walked, arrived in Atlanta yesterday.

Its 16,000 units are being set up at 499 Peachtree street, where it will be exhibited for a limited time beginning February 20 under sponsorship of The Constitution. It will take from now until opening day, with men working day and night, to erect the Holy Land model.

There are 740 life-like moving figures in the exhibit which were handcarved and scaled to the inch. The entire exhibit covers an area 44 by 18 feet.

The Holy Land model was made by the Maltese brothers, Gauci, who began whittling the characters as boys as they listened to their mother tell Bible stories when they grew up, they were inspired to build a complete reproduction of Holy Land and there trace the life of Jesus Christ with a scale model. It was a hobby with them. Then others saw the completed work, which took 11 years to finish, and urged the brothers to exhibit it to the public.

SHOW TO GO ON.

ALBANY, Ga., Feb. 14.—(P)—Storm or no storm, Albany will be scene of the premiere of "The Biscuit Eater," moving picture filmed on location here. The showing will be about April 10, movie officials announced.

Valentine Day Again Brings Woe to 'Alibi'

A romantic interlude for most folks, St. Valentine's Day brought trouble for the third time to Mrs. Louis Rolfe Weibrecht, shown as she appeared in felony court in Chicago yesterday on a disorderly conduct charge.

TALK TO BE GIVEN BY SALLY SAVER

Expert Will Prepare Lamb
Roast Today.

Sally Saver, foods editor of The Constitution, will give an informal lecture-demonstration at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Georgia Power Company store at Little Five Points. The class will be held for the members of the Cub Boy Scout troop of the Church of the Epiphany.

Miss Saver will prepare a lamb roast, and several variations of lenten dishes with cheese, including a planked fish. In addition to the meat dishes she will demonstrate the preparation of simple dishes, giving suggestions for party menus.

This class is one in the series of small cooking schools, sponsored by The Constitution and held in various localities in response to requests from organizations. Designed to give small groups the opportunity to discuss their food problems with Miss Saver personally, the classes will continue throughout April.

'BLONDE ALIBI' GETS TROUBLE VALENTINE

Romantic Day Brings Third
Bundle to McGurn's Widow.

CHICAGO, Feb. 14.—(P)—St. Valentine's Day, romantic for most folk, brought trouble anew to pretty Louise Rolfe today.

It was the third time that vocation and sorrow were visited upon her on that date.

The first was February 14, 1929. Seven gangsters were shot to death in a Northside garage in the "Moran massacre." Louise's boy friend, "Machine Gun Jack" McGurn, was seized for questioning. But he was released when she insisted he was with her about the hour the crime was committed. She was known thereafter as the "Blonde Alibi."

Shortly after midnight of February 14, 1936, McGurn—then her husband—was assassinated.

Today she appeared in felony court on a charge of disorderly conduct. The case hinged on the statements of investigators that a robbery suspect told them he had left a revolver in her home. The defendant—now Mrs. Louise Weibrecht—disclaimed any knowledge of the affair. The hearing was continued to tomorrow.

HARVARD MEN SEND STRANGE VALENTINES

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 14.—(P)—Cambridge messenger boys stood ready to deliver everything from live ducks to old shoes today as young love made itself known through the telegraph on this St. Valentine's Day.

One Harvard student sent his lady fair a quart of milk and a banana split, which he said was "just a gentle hint that students like to be fed when they go calling." Another young lady received from a messenger boy a collection containing a bunch of carrots, a can of peas, a pint of sherbet and an old shoe.

OFFICERS TO OBTAIN IMPROVED TRAINING

War Department Revises Courses for Reserves; Defense Week Observed.

Improved training methods for reserve officers as part of a plan to strengthen national defense was announced yesterday as part of the nation-wide observance of National Defense Week.

Lieutenant Colonel Clifford R. Jones, who as executive officer of the Atlanta military district is in charge of training reserves, said the War Department will release for the new fiscal year a revised extension course program calling for a revision of all series of sub-courses furnished officers for correspondence work.

The move is designed to increase efficiency, through simplification of requirements for officers in all grades.

Under the new plan, a lieutenant will be given 80 per cent of his instruction in the duties of his grade, and 20 per cent in the duties required by the next higher grade—that of captain," Colonel Jones explained.

Civic groups in Atlanta will continue programs in co-operation with the Reserve Officers' Asso-

'Strange' Flag Stirs Curiosity, Reddens Faces

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 14.—(P)—The strange flag waving over Memphis today wasn't the only red thing around town.

"Get a story about that unusual flag," the city editor ordered as soon as he saw it.

Perhaps, those who saw it conjectured, it belongs to some foreign country. Maybe even a revolutionist put it there.

Tennesseans who called to inquire (and the building owners said there'd been about 100) probably blushed as much as the reporter did when they found out.

It was the Tennessee state flag, put up to celebrate Postmaster General Jim Farley's being in town.

Observance of National Defense Week.

Major Roy McCraw will speak to the Atlanta Junior Chamber of Commerce at 12:30 o'clock today at the Ansley hotel. Major D. W. Winfree will speak over radio station WGST at 6 o'clock tonight.

Friday's program calls for addresses by Captain S. A. Cartledge before the Masonic Club at 12:30 o'clock at Rich's tea room, and by Lieutenant E. L. Gunn Jr. before the Lions Club at the Henry Grady hotel.

MORE FOREST LANDS ACQUIRED IN GEORGIA

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—(P)—The purchase of 135,765 acres of land costing $441,401 for addition to national forests was approved today by the National Forest Reservation Commission.

The newly acquired lands comprise 182 separate tracts in 18 states. Among the purchases was one of 188.6 acres, for $1,056, in the Chattahoochee forest unit in Georgia.

CENSUS MEETING AWAITS DIVIDING OF CITY DISTRICTS

Hartsfield To Issue Call When McWhorter Completes Plans for Count; Drive To Be Widespread

Mayor Hartsfield yesterday said he will call labor, civic, patriotic, school, church and other organizations to a mass meeting to co-operate in counting every "living soul in Atlanta" as soon as Fomville McWhorter, who will direct taking of the 1940 census locally, completes his plans for the count.

McWhorter has held several conferences with Raymond W. Torras, engineer-secretary of the city planning commission, and yesterday Torras was working over a mass of census maps, designating district divisions for enumerators, who will take the field April 1.

Torras said his work probably will be finished this week, and so far as his office is concerned, the mass meeting which Mayor Hartsfield has announced could be called immediately afterwards.

The mayor amplified plans for "enlisting the greatest civic and patriotic army Atlanta has ever seen" by saying trailers run at community motion picture houses urging citizens to co-operate with enumerators would be effective.

Opens Atlanta Agency

H. K. McCANN.

M'CANN - ERICKSON OPENS AGENCY HERE

Atlanta Ideal for Complete
Advertising Unit, Says
Pioneer Executive.

H. K. McCann, president of McCann-Erickson, Inc., one of the nation's largest advertising agencies, arrived in Atlanta yesterday to announce the opening of an office in the Ten Pryor Street building here.

No service branch, but a complete agency unit within itself, the Atlanta office of the company will be under the management of Robert H. Scott Jr., long known in advertising circles, and will be staffed by Atlantans throughout all departments.

"My company has always felt three things to be essential in the successful operation of an agency," Mr. McCann, a pioneer who came into the field in 1912, said in his announcement.

"One, to locate in a section of the country which is growing, and grow up with it. Second, to place the agency under the direction of people who know the local community and the likes, dislikes and habits of its people; and, third, to stress newspapers as the medium through which the advertiser gets the quickest response and the best results."

"In Atlanta I think we have found the ideal situation. It is the heart of a great section which is definitely on the boom, with a sectional aggressiveness in development of resources that most of us in the east don't realize."

"In Bob Scott I think we have the best man we could possibly have found for the job. And in the Atlanta newspaper field as it now exists we find a perfect set-up for complete coverage."

The agency here will be the 12th office of McCann-Erickson, whose coverage is world-wide, in the United States.

FORUM SCHEDULED ON TUBERCULOSIS

Association Here Will Study Problems Today.

The Atlanta Tuberculosis Association will hold its annual meeting from 3:30 to 5 o'clock this afternoon in the assembly room of the association's headquarters, 282 Forrest avenue, and discuss in open forum the question of "How Can the 1939 Service Program Be Improved in 1940?" Representatives of Fulton and DeKalb county health and welfare departments, public hospitals, medical societies and organizations will attend.

ANTI-NEW DEALER NAMED TO CONGRESS

MALONE, N. Y., Feb. 14.—(P)—Clarence E. Kilburn, 46-year-old president of the Malone People's Trust Company and an avowed opponent of the New Deal, will represent the 31st New York district in congress.

Kilburn, Republican, defeated his Democratic opponent, M. Henry McGillicuddy, of Massena, by more than two to one in a special election yesterday to determine a successor to the late Representative Wallace E. Pierce, Republican.

PLENTY OF VALENTINES, BUT ROMANCE ABSENT

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 14.—(P)—Three Valentines got together in a courtroom today. The result was a divorce.

Superior Judge Dudley S. Valentine granted the decree to Mrs. Marie Valentine. She testified her husband, Ralph M. Valentine, had been intoxicated on practically every day since their marriage, and sometimes in between.

BROTHERS NEED JOBS, ROB BANK, GET 'LIFE'

SANTA FE, N. M., Feb. 14.—(P)—Herbie Rowse, 22-year-old carpenter, hadn't had any work in three weeks. Then brother Bill, 20, lost his $40-a-week job in an automobile shop.

"It got awfully dull being broke," Bill related. "My brother owed on his pick-up truck. We needed money bad, and right now." So the brothers robbed the state bank at Espanola, 35 miles north, of $1,688. Thirty-six hours later they pleaded guilty and received life sentences.

MAN, 70, WON'T QUIT OLD-AGE RELIEF POST

DUNKIRK, N. Y., Feb. 14.—(P)—Godfrey M. Hoefler, who will be 70 tomorrow, refuses to retire under the age limit set by the State Welfare Board from his job as head of the Municipal Old Age Relief Division. Hoefler informed the police and fire board it had voted him a two-year reappointment January 1 at $125 a month and he expected the board to "find duties" for him to perform at that salary "to the last minute of the term."

DOCTOR ASKS RULING ON AID FOR QUADS

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Feb. 14.—(P)—Alabama's attorney general searched the statutes and scanned the state constitution today to determine whether the board of revenue of Walker county could legally aid in financing construction of a permanent home for the Short quadruplets.

An inquiry from Dr. H. J. Sankey, who signed himself as "co-guardian and chairman of the advisory committee," asked Attorney General Thomas S. Lawson for an opinion on the legality of a resolution the county governing body passed offering financial aid to such an undertaking.

S.S.S. TONIC must be good

So many people take it —to increase appetite
—to boost energy

COUNTLESS thousands of men and women can testify to the benefits S.S.S. Tonic has brought them.

The facts are simple because of all conditions affecting the human body a low blood count is most deceptive. If you feel rundown . . . lack a keen appetite . . . have lost weight . . . don't give up until you restore those precious red-blood-cells back to normal.

S.S.S. Tonic may be just what you need to get you on the right road to health and happiness again.

In S.S.S. Tonic you go after the trouble in two ways . . . first you increase the appetite and better your stomach digestion—thus making better use of the food you eat—secondly, thin, weak, watery blood is made rich and red again thus giving you a boost in energy.

Try S.S.S. which any drug store can supply and no ethical dealer will suggest a substitute. The big 30 oz. size is a two week's treatment and represents a saving in the purchase price. S.S.S. Co.

ATLANTA, GA., FEBRUARY 15, 1940.

The Press Institute

The thirteenth annual gathering of the Georgia Press Institute is to take place in Athens, February 21 to 24, inclusive. A program which includes a fascinating list of subjects for discussion as well as of distinguished and able speakers has been arranged.

These annual Press Institutes are jointly sponsored by the Georgia Press Association and the Henry W. Grady School of Journalism, at the University of Georgia. They have, in the past, contributed much to the journalism of the state and thus have played large part in the advancement of Georgia.

This year's session is of particular significance in that it comes at the same time as the 25th anniversary of the founding of the Grady School of Journalism.

The School of Journalism at Athens was launched in 1915, under the direction of Dr. S. V. Sanford, now chancellor of the University System of Georgia and then a member of the English faculty. It was in 1921 the young school was named for Henry W. Grady, an alumnus of the university and probably the most famous editor and orator of the south.

Today the Grady school ranks among the finest of its type in the country. It is a member of the American Association of Schools and Departments of Journalism, the accrediting organization whose membership is limited to schools which meet certain strict requirements as to curriculum, faculty and equipment.

The Press Institute provides an annual forum where newspapermen may discuss their problems and at the same time bring to Georgia famous speakers. This year's program includes such outstanding platform figures as Waldemar Kaempfert, science editor of the New York Times; Robert L. Dorman, general manager of Acme Newspapers, Inc., of New York; Doyle L. Buckles, field manager, Alabama Press Association; Edison Marshall, novelist, short story writer and explorer; Harlan Miller, Washington correspondent; Raymond Clapper, political columnist, and DeWitt MacKenzie, foreign news analyst of the Associated Press, of New York. In addition many Georgia newspapermen will take part in the discussions.

All sessions of the Institute are open to the general public and to the students of the university, except the luncheons, dinners, etc., admission to which is by special badge.

The Press Institute offers an outstanding opportunity to contact and to hear men who are constantly in touch with public events and is one of the most instructive and informative conferences to meet within the state.

Social Service Index Day

Today has been designated as Social Service Index Day, by the National Association of Community Chests and Councils. It is the purpose of the programs planned for the day to inform the public generally of the functions and values of the Social Service Index, one of the most important adjuncts of social welfare work in any community.

A knowledge of the work of this agency will go a long way toward answering the question, asked by all who contribute, either by gifts or taxes, to welfare work, as to the efficient and economical use of the funds supplied.

In Atlanta, the Index is supported through the Community Fund. It serves all Fund agencies and public welfare organizations, and others outside the Fund.

Through the Index all agencies may learn what other agencies for relief or welfare have done in every case brought to their attention. Thus all the agencies are enabled to work intelligently together, to avoid duplication of effort and to plan better for the benefit of each individual family or person who needs help.

During the 27 years of its operation the Index has accumulated a vast record of applications made and work performed, yet it is far more than an accumulation of records and files. It is one of the most valuable of tools for the case-worker. It is a social history of the community. It assures to every person seeking help to the utmost of effort on his, or her, behalf and at the same time it guides every agency in working with every other agency in a program more effective for helplessness.

The Index is one of the most valuable, although least known, organizations for human welfare. A better knowledge of its functions and its service would not only increase confidence in the handling of welfare contributions but, as a direct corollary, would increase the sum total of those gifts.

The Anzacs Arrive

Concluding one of the greatest troop ship convoys in the history of the world, 30,000 troops from Australia and New Zealand have been landed at Suez, ready to play whatever part may be in store for them in the fight against Germany and, possibly, Russia.

There is a tremendous sense of drama in this movement of fighting men from the Antipodes. It demonstrates, emphatically, the unity of belief and of faith throughout the far-flung British Commonwealth of Nations and once again evidences that, despite changes in modern modes of government and organization, British fundamentals are the same all over the world.

It must be remembered that Australia, New Zealand, Canada, South Africa are no longer portions of an "empire." They are independent units of a commonwealth of nations linked only by heritage and sentiment. None of them had to go to war simply because the mother country had entered the conflict. Each made the decision for war or for peace for itself.

There is important strategic significance in the establishment of the Anzac troops at Suez. The presence of such a force at the canal makes certain continued Allied control of that essential waterway. But it means more. The Anzacs, added to the British and French troop concentrations already in the Near East indicate a strong probability that, before long, the decisive arena of conflict may shift from the west wall to the eastern doorway into Germany. With Turkey as an ally and with the possibility of the Balkan states joining with them, with Italy as another possible ally, the Allies would be able to throw a force totalling millions of men against Germany's eastern border. And, if Russia finally joins her military might to that of Germany the Allies would be in the best possible situation to block the Stalin onslaught.

Of course, no man can know, at this stage, what the developments in Europe's war may be. Every indication is that there will be a terrific outbreak of battle activity with the coming of spring. But, whether that will take the form of a breaking of the stalemate in the west or the beginning of operations in a new eastern area of battle, is at best but surmise.

Whatever the development, however, those who recall the achievements of the Anzac troops in the first World War will be in no doubt as to the manner in which they will conduct themselves this time. The record of the Anzacs of a quarter-century ago is one of the finest in all the history of battle.

Timber Farming

There has recently come from the United States Forest Service a booklet, consisting chiefly of pictures and the accompanying descriptive text, entitled "Southern Pines Pay." It tells the story of the new timber farming which is proving the salvation of many southern areas and it gives, in succinct form, the story of a people who are finding in new methods the solution of an economic problem caused by changing agricultural conditions.

That trees are, essentially, a crop, is the keynote of the lesson taught in this booklet. The days when the grown forests were accepted, without thought, as a free gift from nature, are gone. Today the man who would find a profit in his trees, must replant the cut-over areas, must protect the trees and forests from fire and must use the ax and the saw with restraint and wisdom.

A properly tended area of pine will yield a steady, annual income, if properly used. It is a continuing crop, self-perpetuating if correctly handled.

In addition, however, to direct returns, reforestation of bare and idle acres can contribute more to the general wealth of the land than any other single factor. It stops soil erosion, prevents destructive floods and restores the clear waters of the rivers in place of the yellow, muddy streams that too often bear away the nation's wealth in washed off topsoil.

The Forest Service booklet, "Southern Pines Pay," should be read and studied and given serious thought by every southerner concerned, directly or indirectly, in the future of the land.

An author, writing of his two years in a trailer, says he takes a goat along for milk. A folding road map, by the by, makes a nice lunch for a goat.

An analyst thinks the cost of the Ethiopian venture cooled the Duce's martial spirit. It illustrates anew the wisdom of trying on a small war for size.

Many years before Roentgen and his marvelous X-ray, there were women who could identify a gift through seven layers of cardboard.

Editorial of the Day

FALSE PATRIOTS

(From The Dallas Morning News.)
Now that the American melting pot has virtually completed its work, there should be less occasion than ever for intolerant agitation against aliens. Yet a report just completed by Dr. Albert Parry, New York University lecturer, asserts that more than 800 organizations in the United States, under the cloak of patriotism, are now engaged in hate-inciting anti-alien propaganda.

With the number of aliens dwindling every year as a result of both immigration restrictions and naturalization, the relatively small number remaining do not, as a group, give any cause for alarm or persecution. Yet, money-grasping promoters are holding them up as a danger to American institutions and thus selling memberships in their numerous organizations. Many people are gullible enough to swallow this propaganda, and some honest but misguided really believe that the government is in danger of overthrow by aliens. The anti-alien agitators are themselves a worse danger. These false patriots, says Ernest Hemingway, "serve to spread hatred, oppression and confusion that can only be harmful to the welfare of the American people. The attack upon the so-called alien today is in essence an attack upon the rights of all Americans, native and foreign-born, citizen and noncitizen. It is a disguised assault on our democratic institutions."

The man who wants to take civil rights away from the alien likely will want next to take them away from other minority groups—in fact, from everyone who disagrees with him. Baiting the alien is a cheap political sport that is beneath the dignity of the real patriot, who realizes that every American except the Indian is descended from alien stock.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

NEUTRAL "PARTIES AT INTEREST" WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—A novel and striking theory of international relations reached maturity in Secretary of State Hull's disclosure of informal discussions with other nations. The secretary's current speech is often extremely salty, but his public style lacks punch.

His statement of the discussions' objective—"eventual restoration of world peace on a sound and lasting basis"—sounded pretty platitudinous.

Behind Hull's words, however, lies the theory which explains them. It really originated in the constant interaction between the minds of the President, Hull and Under-Secretary of State Sumner Welles. It was first cogently stated by Welles last April, during the abortive war crisis following the seizure of Prague. In the course of a discussion of war's probable consequences, Welles remarked that in the modern world neutral nations were really "parties at interest" in any post-war settlement.

Welles' logic is obvious. The modern world is an economic unit. As Versailles proved, a bad post-war settlement intimately affects neutrals as well as belligerent nations. In this sense, therefore, the neutrals are "parties at interest." What is novel is the extension of this obvious logic into actual foreign policy. If the neutrals are "parties at interest," then they have a right to a seat at the conference table round which the post-war settlement is made. To prepare to claim such a seat will be the duty of neutrals. Even informal discussions, unless the State Department has entirely changed its mind.

COMMON NEUTRAL FRONT Initiating discussions among neutrals has been in the departmental mind ever since the outbreak of war.

The discussions would have begun long before they did, if it had not been for one factor: Most of the European neutrals were at first too terrified even to bid one another "good morning," since Hitler seemed likely to take the most pacific move as pretext for an onslaught. The terror has passed to some extent, and thus the discussions are now possible.

The key to the discussions' character is to be found in Hull's description of them as "preliminary inquiries relating to a sound international economic system and at the same time, world-wide reduction of armaments." Every move in administration foreign policy has had in view these ends.

The President's commonest dictum, repeated to every caller with whom he talks international problems, is that "we can only have a return to a common-sense world if there is disarmament and an opening of trade." From the discussions, a common neutral front on the two problems should finally emerge. A program may be drawn up, the president said, and when the seat at the conference table is finally claimed.

To be sure the "if and when" embody a necessary qualification. Clearly, claiming the seat may prove extremely difficult. Neither group of belligerents would now care to admit such a claim by nations which have not shed their blood or spent their treasure. But in return for the seat, the neutrals would have to promise to reduce armaments and to support the economic settlement. In their post-war economic and the democracies, at least, might well accept such an arrangement.

THE RUB The Welles theory, meanwhile, reaches its final and most problematical extension when it is applied to the duration of the war. If neutrals are parties at interest in the settlement, they must be equally so in the condition of war which has already disrupted the internal economies of most countries in the world.

One can as easily imagine a common neutral front for peace as a common neutral front for post-war reason and moderation. But for such a common front to be effective, the neutrals would necessarily have to be prepared to say, "Here, we've had enough of this. You fellows stop fighting on such and such terms. And if you don't, you must suffer such and such penalties." The rub, for few neutrals would attempt such positive intervention. Certainly, it is unlikely that the United States would. Furthermore, it is almost inconceivable that the President would demand a peace allowing Germany to keep what she has now. And it is equally inconceivable that Germany would sacrifice her gains without being made to do so.

For Good Food, The Smaller Places.

I hope none of my friends who operate our more important hotels will be hurt at what is to be read this morning. Far be it from me to disparage experts at a difficult task, or to belittle their efforts to provide the best possible sustenance for traveling mankind. I've no doubt they, and the stewards in their dining rooms, do the best they can with the resources available. And I don't deny that best is sometimes very, very good.

Nevertheless I have discovered, and will emphatically contend, that if you find the best to be had in the city behind and go to some of the smaller places.

It falls to my lot to attend luncheons with more than common frequency. Two or three days each week find me one of the guests at the midday luncheon meeting of some club or other. And, while my appetite and digestion are such my particular plate is never cleared, completely, the temptation to overeat is always assembly hall than it is in the luncheon auditorium of a big city hotel.

I think the reason is that in the smaller places it is the wives and sisters of the members of the club who supervise the selection and the cooking and the serving of the food. And the best chef in the world can't compete, when it comes right down to cases, with really good southern home cooking.

Standardized Menu.

The plate that will appear before you at the big hotel is always of the same general assortment. A small steak or some slices of turkey meat on top of a pile of dressing. Mashed or fried Irish potatoes, invariably, a portion of English peas. The peas are always there. The only variety is that, sometimes, they are in a tumbler and sometimes loose on the plate.

Whatever hotel you happen to be patronizing for this particular luncheon, the above-mentioned plate always tastes the same.

Whereas, when you go to a small-town luncheon—then, my friends, you find real food. It may be steak, true, but it is cut, fried, with slathers of rich, home-made gravy. Rarely do you face the peas. Some other vegetable, surprisingly prepared—

For instance, that sweet potato offering in its name, baked with a dash of butter, baked with pecan pralines on top. It makes the mouth water afresh just to think of it.

And the mashed Irish potatoes, if they are there, are always fluffy and smooth and helped with that appetizing dash from the spoon. Never in those forbidding round balls that come from the latest mechanical serving device.

The dessert is, in the smaller pieces, oftentimes a delicious surprise, instead of the apple pie with a slight sliver of cheese or the carefully measured, semi-melted slab of ice cream with the infinitesimal portion of bakery cake, you find at a hotel.

Believe me, if you desire real food at your next civic luncheon, arrange to hold it in the dining room of a woman's club in some small Georgia town and persuade the members of that club to cook and serve it for you.

Regular Fellows.

Leaving the subject of food, you'd be fascinated at the great numbers of fine fellows you meet when you attend so many of these luncheons and dinner meetings. Of course, it is impossible to remember many of them, afterward. So, if recognition doesn't dawn in the old eye next time we meet, don't be offended. No slight was intended, believe me.

But, if you've ever had doubts about the basic common sense of the men who make Georgia, make a round of these clubs and rectify your erroneous impression.

They are, scarcely with exception, a grand bunch of "regular fellows."

Business men, professional men, merchants, farmers, etc., etc. You meet them all and you shake hands and someone starts a conversation and you find yourself listening to a lot of understanding and logical contention.

We may not, all of us, agree, but in the fundamentals of good sense, good citizenship and good democracy, the folks who make up Georgia are a pretty fine, intelligent and hard-headed crowd.

The more you see of them the better you like 'em. At least, that's my experience.

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today.

From the news columns of Monday, February 15, 1915:

"On the dizzy heights of the Healey building, Fire Chief Cummings and his men battled with a stubborn blaze for 30 minutes last night before it was extinguished."

And Fifty Years Ago.

From the news columns of Saturday, February 15, 1890:

"There is some talk of establishing a bank in Talbotton, with a capital stock of $100,000."

Got His Money. When a man walked into the county courthouse at Mayfield, Ky., to pay his taxes, Deputy Sheriff Dalton Coleman recognized him as one of several men who escaped arrest last year in a raid on a still near Mayfield. The fugitive was locked up in jail—after Deputy Coleman accompanied him to the treasurer's office to pay his taxes.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Political Raspberry. NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—The fact remains after the shrill clamor of the so-called Youth Congress, and the soft skush of dissenters striking the pavement outside, that this organization defiantly harbors groups which are not merely disloyal to the United States but actively loyal to Joseph Stalin, whose dictatorship is the worst of President Roosevelt, "as absolute as any other dictatorship in the world." Mr. Roosevelt is not the first to notice this interesting peculiarity of the Moscow government, but his remark, hurriedly unexpurgated, at the mass of precocious pets of Mrs. R., had the political effect of that lewd note known as the raspberry.

In almost every other family this would have been sure to call for private discussion running far into the night and, the Roosevelts being human, Mr. Big's impolite salute to his lady's friends may have been the subject of a continued discussion in private. If so, the public may yet be permitted to know how the argument came out, for the White House is a regular port of call on the night club beat nowadays and is rapidly pulling up towards events with the Stork Club, and it appears that the lack of reticence is both charming and famous.

Earl Browder's testimony before the Dies Committee contained an admission that to a member of the Communist party of America, Joseph Stalin is infallible in matters of foreign policy up to and including war and not excepting war against the United States. The position which he stated was not one of divided allegiance to the Moscow government.

Opponents As head man in this country of an organization which places absolute authority in its head man and his appointed deputies he lays down the law for American Communists. Thus, plainly, the Communists in the Youth Congress, to say nothing of the fellow travelers who are only pledges, so to speak, with the right to renege, are not mere critics but opponents of the American government and prospective enemies of the nation. Mrs. Roosevelt has been seen feeding sugar to this Trojan steed, which is not a dashing charger, however, but a swayback plug. Her error is not as grave as it may seem, for the Congress as a whole is not Communist.

To change the metaphor and employ a bit of roguishness which would have seemed dreadfully daring a few seasons ago, the Youth Congress is only a jettisoned Communist. As to whether it must become more so in the natural course of events before it becomes less so, nobody can say. The condition could be cured abruptly, but the best constitutional remedy is around the Congress hold that this would require an illegal operation. They insist that it would be a violation of American principle to kick out the young Communists because of their beliefs, and it appears that nobody raised the more vital question of their allegiance. It is not easy but it is possible to tolerate offensive beliefs in a congress of Americans. But it is no offense against the most liberal Americanism to cancel the credentials of those who have chosen to un-Americanize or foreignize themselves to the extent of membership in the Communist party.

If It Were Parchesi.

This one clumsy mistake does not entirely revoke Mrs. Roosevelt's reputation as a smart politician operating in the guise of an enthusiastic novice, but if this were parchesi instead of politics, let one of her markers would be set back to scratch. She whooped up the congress and had barely eased out the last ham of the Hollywood international before the kiddies began to slide down the banisters and write letters home on the White House stationery. The Congress was her show, and she placed herself in the status of chief lobbyist for a $500,000 appropriation just in time to hear the President pronounce a hex on hobbies and tummy-money subsidies. The adventure soon got out of hand with pestiferous hundred percenters pressing for adoption of inopportune declarations of American principle for no reason and with cops diving into the crowd to pluck those nuckers out.

Stubbornness and overconfidence were Mrs. Roosevelt's faults here. She was in wrong from the start, because even the most generous Americanism does not call for executive hospitality to anti-Americans, even incidentally. No question of tolerance was involved. Mrs. Roosevelt, nevertheless, chose to risk her personal and official prestige and, for the first time, lost.

Talmudic Tales

By DAVID MORANTZ.

(Based upon the ancient legends and philosophy found in the Talmud and folklore of the Jewish people. From time to time Morantz will also appear in this column questions he has been asked on the religion, customs, ceremonies, institutions, etc., of the Jews.)

PEARLS OF WISDOM.

"It is our duty," says the Talmud, "to fulfill the wishes of the departed."

"It is our duty to relieve the poor and those who need; to visit the sick and bury the dead without distinction of race or creed."

"It is sinful to deceive the government in taxes and duties."

"It is the duty of everyone to betray a hypocrite."

"It is wise not to seek a secret and honest and not to reveal it."

"It is woman alone through whom God's blessings are vouchsafed to a home."

Too Big To Hide.

Thieves, too, change their minds. J. D. Hilbrand, member of the Pueblo, Colo., Symphony Orchestra, lost his big bass viol at a concert. The next day the $500 instrument was found in a residential street. Apparently the thieves decided the instrument was too distinctive to be sold safely.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

POKER-PLAYING, WHISKY-DRINKING After all, there was something symbolic in the announcement by the Republican party that Walter Johnson is a candidate for a congressional seat in his district in Maryland. Who was Walter Johnson?

Why, he was the "Big Train" of baseball, probably the fastest pitcher baseball ever knew. They even made up a little poem about Johnson's fast ball.

"Nobody knows what Johnson's got,
Whether he throws a curve or drop,
Whether his fast ball sails or not;
Nobody knows what Johnson's got,
Not having seen it—yet."

Walter Johnson was not at all connected with intrigue or with politics. In the winter he was pictured with his cows or his bird dogs. He was a gentleman on the diamond. Never once did he rush in to shake a threatening fist under the umpire's nose. Not once did he swear to take the umpire apart to see what makes an umpire miss balls and strikes. He just stood out there and pitched. The ball came up there looking about the size of a pea. He was a great pitcher.

This, of course, is positive proof he was not a Democrat. A Democrat must have his say and must express his emotions. Walter Johnson was cool and calm, just as was Cal Coolidge and he whom "Careful Cal" used to call "The Boy Wonder"—Herbert Hoover.

One wonders, too, if in nominating Walter Johnson the Republicans were not seeking to put up a man for every office who will escape the benison of "poker-playing, whisky-drinking, evil old man" with which Mr. Garner, an able Democrat, was blessed by John L. Lewis.

A LOST FAST BALL The advancement of Walter Johnson may be a bit indicative of the Republican party. Mr. Johnson has had his day. His glory is to be found in the record books. The sports writers can take down the books and find that on a certain day Mr. Johnson caused 17 batters to strike out and permitted only one man to reach first base.

But the public is interested in the present condition of Dizzy Dean's arm and in whether or not young Bob Feller, of the Indians, isn't the fastest pitcher baseball ever knew.

The glory of the G. O. P. is faded so that they just go all the way back to Lincoln to find a man who has contributed something to the nation.

Johnson was a great pitcher. The G. O. P. once was a great party. Both are faded.

The loud and bawling Democrats will assert they and their party very much are alive. They want no faded glory, but some pitcher who has a fast ball for today; one who can strike out the batters today. Not one whose achievements are in the old record books.

The Democrats will say the advancement of Walter Johnson is typical of the G. O. P. Both have lost their fast ball. Both have been retired to private life.

MEANWHILE, IN GEORGIA Georgians are recalling the Democratic primary of 1912. That year the Georgia delegation was stomped into a primary and instructed by Oscar Underwood, the able senator from Alabama.

The Georgia delegation sat there, droning out "Georgia casts 28 votes for Underwood."

William Jennings Bryan came and defeated Champ Clark. Champ Clark had been almost a sure chance until the melodious voice of Bryan was lifted. There still was some brass left in the Bryan trumpet in those days.

The point was, Georgia might as well have stayed at home. Woodrow Wilson was nominated. Georgia voted against him, being instructed, which means shackled.

There was a subsequent instructed delegation which went pledged to another hopeless cause. It, too, was futile.

No one wants to deprive the people of the right to vote. But to instruct a state delegation to one man, especially a hopeless candidate, seems the height of folly. Georgians will have their chance to vote for the party's nominee.

It would appear, for instance, the height of folly to instruct for Garner. Garner is an able man. But Garner himself has said he does not want to be president but wants merely to prevent a third term.

A Georgia delegation, pledged to a man who wants merely to prevent something and not win something, would gain the state nothing in practical patronage. It is going to be an important contest, this one at Chicago. It appears to me, personally, that an instructed delegation would hurt the party in the state. It is ridiculous to say that the state executive committee will allow the naming of a "controlled" delegation which will lobby the will of the Governor or of Jim Gillis. There will be Georgians of integrity and forthrightness on the committee.

Meanwhile, the primary committee has published not one contribution nor explained why its members would have no part of a primary in 1936 and now so vigorously wish the people to vote in one.

The sound of political axes being ground still rings in the air.

Burbank Developed Wonders From Common Stock, But He Always Used Good Ground

By ROBERT QUILLLEN.

Robert Taft, who may be the next President of the United States, won all firsts in law school, at Yale, and in prep school. His mind is brilliant and deep; his character is solid and above reproach; he is incapable of anything base or vile.

What made him that kind of man? What did he have that other men lack?

His father, able and blameless, was the only man to be both chief justice and President; his mother came from a distinguished family that also had proved its ability by its attainments. His grandfather, a lawyer of New England stock, was an ambassador and a member of the cabinet, and his other grandparents were equally capable and commendable.

Japan's foreign trade in fish-liver has risen rapidly since 1938, due mainly to American markets.

Red Enigmas To Be Unveiled If Allies Come to Finns' Aid

Unexpected Contingency Facing Moscow, Observer Believes, Seeing Possible Settlement of Hotly Debated Question of Communistic Stability.

(Editor's Note: Dewitt Mackenzie, veteran Associated Press war correspondent, in "The War Today" presents a unique interpretive picture of the international situation.)

By DEWITT MACKENZIE. The Communism of which we have been hearing so much lately on the battlefield in full view of the world if the European war continues to develop the way it is going now.

That is, if Russia is forced into the general conflict as the result of Anglo-French rescue of Finland from the Red invasion, the numerous Soviet mysteries which have been puzzling other countries for 20-odd years will be hung on the line for all to see.

Thus will be settled the hotly debated questions of the stability of the Communistic state and the loyalty of the Russian masses to this ideal.

Allies Ready.

Anglo-French preparations to assist Finland, and the Allied massing of troops in the Near East, make it amply clear that the Allies are ready to take on the Muscovites as well as Germany if necessary—and maybe it isn't necessary.

And it is perfectly certain that while they are engaged in carrying out their avowed aim of "crushing Hitlerism," they won't be averse to taking a whack at this other item which has, on and off, been the nightmare of much of Europe for years.

It is highly unlikely that such a contingency entered into the calculations of Moscow when the Red army was sent into Finland.

Observers generally believe the Communists expected the Finns to meet the Soviet demands without resistance.

But the Finns fought! And history did a flip-flop.

Toured Eastern Europe.

When I toured eastern Europe and the Balkans just after the Munich crisis, wherever I went I sought the view of high quarters as to Russia's position. Without exception I was told that the Soviet wouldn't embark on war.

Numerous reasons were advanced, but the most important was the allegation that the people of Russia were in such a state of unrest that the authorities wouldn't dare engage in war, fearing an upheaval if the masses were given a chance to coalesce.

Throughout the 15 years of Stalin's leadership he has avoided war until now. Under his instructions the Soviet signed 28 nonaggression pacts up to 1933, one of the last being with Finland.

War Broke Out.

When war broke out between Germany and the Allies, it was accepted generally that Russia would remain neutral, gathering without abhor sheaves reaped by other countries, and driving the Red wave of Communism across Europe. But the Finns fought.

The Anglo-French Allies immediately placed the Bolsheviks in the same category of aggression as they had labeled out to Herr Hitler. It is the announced purpose of the Allies to crush Hitlerism and restore the countries he has conquered. It further is their aim to restore Finland, but whether they regard Communism as something to be "crushed" remains to be seen.

If we get the denouement now it will be epochal. Ever since Bolshevism was born out of the Czarist revolution, the rest of Europe has fought it. Fascism and Nazism were created to combat it. True, as Stalin pursued his policy of peace, things eased considerably, and numerous countries began diplomatic relations with Moscow.

GEORGIANS TO FACE WAGE-HOUR CHARGE

Thomson Company Indicted on 19 Counts in Savannah Court.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Feb. 14.—(AP) Fergus Belanger, special assistant to the attorney general, said an indictment was returned by a federal grand jury here this afternoon charging a Thomson company and its president and manager with violating the wage-hour law.

He said defendants in the indictment are McNeill, Lauff and McNeill, David A. McNeill, and John T. McNeill.

The firm was described by federal officials as an Illinois corporation engaged in the manufacture of boxes, crates and lumber, in Thomson, and employing approximately 180 workers.

The indictment contains nineteen counts. Eight charge failure to pay minimum wage of 25 cents an hour; four charge failure to pay overtime; three charge falsification of record; three charge the shipment in interstate commerce of goods produced in violation of the wage-hour act, and one charges failure to keep adequate records.

The falsification alleged consists in recording fewer hours than employees worked so as to make it appear the minimum wage was being paid, and in recording inaccurately the rate of pay of certain employees to make it appear they received time and one-half for overtime.

The law provides for penalties as high as $10,000 on each count upon conviction.

GOOD MORNING

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

DR. GEORGE W. TRUETT.

I am leaving this morning to go out to Texas for a state-wide dinner Friday evening in honor of Dr. George W. Truett, pastor since 1897 of the First Baptist church, Dallas—the largest Baptist church in the world. The dinner is given by his Texas friends in recognition of his world-famous career as a religious leader of our day and generation.

Dr. Truett has held every position of honor in the gift of his fellow Baptists at home and abroad. He has presided over three sessions of the Baptist World Alliance—Toronto in 1928, Berlin in 1934, and Atlanta in 1939. He presided at Toronto in the absence of Dr. E. Y. Mullins, who was ill, and at Berlin in the absence of Dr. John MacNeill, who had died. He was elected president at Berlin. Previously, he had served as president of the Southern Baptist Convention, and of numerous other Baptist bodies, state, sectional and national.

But one will never discover the greatness of Dr. Truett by any position of leadership and honor conferred upon him. His greatness lies in his genius of selflessness, his capacity to utterly lose himself in service to others. One must see and hear him preach to catch the true greatness of the man. Often have I sat enthralled under his sermons, remembering how once he said in a sermon:

"Happy, if with my latest breath may but gasp His Name; Behold, behold the Lamb!"

Phillips Brooks once defined preaching as truth given through personality, and I have often thought that if Phillips Brooks had heard Dr. Truett preach, he probably would have said preaching is truth given through George Truett. It is George W. Truett, the preacher, of which I shall try to speak Friday night.

And I have taken for my subject: "God's Man on God's Mission With God's Message." It is a wonderful thing to see a man wholly dedicated to God's will. Dr. Truett is as nearly such a man as anyone I have ever known or known about. And he has always impressed me as being fully conscious all the time that he is moving in the will of God—that he is one sent of God. He wanted to be a lawyer, and what a lawyer he would have made! But he felt the call to the ministry, and to that call he was submissive. And his sermons have always impressed me as being God's message. Indeed, he comes as nearly being "the voice of one speaking for God" as any preacher or teacher I have known. God be thanked for giving us such a man, and may it please Him to raise up yet others, many who, like George Truett, shall cry: "Behold, behold the Lamb!"

White Discovers Sergeant From Africa in Finland

By WILLIAM L. WHITE. Special Correspondent.

SOMEWHERE IN FINLAND: (By Mail)—It was 25 below zero Fahrenheit, but the sergeant from the front lines told us he was the only one in his company who really suffered from the cold, as he had spent 10 years in Africa with the foreign legion, (which was why his French was so good), while the other Finns had always been used to it. He was not allowed to tell us how many men his company had lost compared to the Russians, but could say that they had destroyed more Russian tanks than they themselves had lost in dead.

We asked him how the Russians' clothing was, and he said one night a Finnish patrol came on two Russian sentries who had no gloves, so each man had thrust the fingers of one hand up the coat sleeve of the other, keeping them warm as you would with a muff. The sergeant thrust his own fingers far up his own coat sleeves to show us.

When the Finns told these two in Russian to put up their hands, they did not obey, but kept their fingers in their sleeves, and cried out so loudly in Russian that the Finns had to kill them, or other Russians might have heard and come to their aid. But they were not understood, but he personally thought they had kept their fingers in their sleeves because it was such a very cold night.

The sergeant said he thought Russians usually understood well enough, like the ones in one tank of three which had been disabled by the Finns.

The Finns thought there might be men in this tank, which was closed, and so knocked loudly on its metal side and told them in Russian to come out and surrender or they would be killed. But there was no sound from this tank. So the Finns went on to the others, and when they came back to it, sure enough, its lid was open and the men gone, trying to escape back to Russia. But they were found and killed when only a little way off, as the Finns could see these Russians had understood very well what was said to them when the Finns had first knocked on their tank.

Some Officers Bad.

The sergeant, who had been in the French foreign legion, said he thought some Russian officers were good, but knew others to be very bad. Last week the Russians made an attack led by a single tank, with a line of men on each side of it, but walking just behind the tank.

In its shelter, were three Russian officers, who kept shouting, and waving, and ordering the two lines of men on either side of the tank to keep abreast of them. Seeing this, a Finnish officer from the top of the wall of a destroyed house, with a rifle picked off the three officers marching behind the tank. So then the sergeant showed us with a wave of his hand how quickly the attack then ended, the Russian soldiers all running back into the woods. But some Russian officers, the sergeant said, were brave and very good.

The sergeant, who had been in the foreign legion, told us much more that was also interesting and instructive, but in it all I found only one continuous moral, which deed, he comes as nearly being "the voice of one speaking for God" as any preacher or teacher I have known. God be thanked for giving us such a man, and may it please Him to raise up yet others, many who, like George Truett, shall cry: "Behold, behold the Lamb!"

RICHMOND GUNMEN

PLUG CLOTHES DUMMY

RICHMOND, Va., Feb. 14.—(AP) Pistol shots rang out in the shopping area early today—and a smartly-clad figure fell to the street, a bullet in her abdomen.

Police caught the gunmen loitering near a store, but they didn't explain whose stray shot plugged a clothes dummy in the show window.

POLICE HELP DRIVER, THEN ARREST HIM
PASADENA, Cal., Feb. 14.—(AP) Sergeants Ralph Schad and Merle Roberts, cruising in a police car, offered aid to the driver of a stalled truck.

They were pushing the truck down the street when a description of it came over their radio. They arrested the driver on suspicion of burglary and recovered nine new tires, seven pairs of shoes and 47 cartons of cigars.

THREE BUS FIRMS SEEK TO USE NEW MARIETTA ROAD

Public Service Commission Considering Applications After Hearing Petitioners' Arguments.

Applications of three bus companies to change operation of their buses from the old to the new Marietta highway now being built were taken under advisement yesterday by the Georgia Public Service Commission after presentation of arguments.

The Union Bus Company and Southeastern Greyhound Lines seek to reroute part of their buses over the new highway, while the Smoky Mountain Stages is asking that it be allowed to abandon the old highway entirely.

Members of the commission did not go into executive session after the arguments, and decision was postponed.

Preston Arkwright, president of the Georgia Power Company, which operates the streetcar line between Atlanta and Marietta, told the commission he did not object to the changes, but explained he thought the lines which continue to operate over the old highway should not be permitted to handle local traffic.

Arkwright also told the commission that the company would consider reducing fares on the Atlanta-Marietta streetcar line if the recently reduced rates on the Stone Mountain line proved successful.

Lost: One Big Toe Desired: $5,000 Reason: Damages

John C. Marshall, 20, of 137 West Peachtree street, wants $5,000 for the loss of his big toe, on his right foot.

Marshall, through his mother, Mrs. A. M. Marshall, yesterday filed a $5,000 damage suit against the trustees of the Atlanta Y. M. C. A. in Fulton superior court. The action sets out that Marshall's toe was jerked off in October, 1937, when it was caught in a diving board, which it is charged, was defective, at the Y. M. C. A. pool on Luckie street.

NEW DRUG MAY CURE DREAD BONE DISEASE

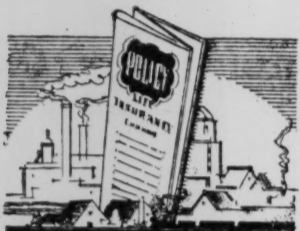

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 14.—(AP)

Experiments are afoot hinting that a new drug may be a possible cure for dread osteomyelitis, bone-killing disease that cripples thousands and strikes particularly at children, it was disclosed here today by Dr. Perrin H. Long, of John Hopkins University, Baltimore.

The new drug is sulfathiazol, a cousin of sulfanilamide and of fapyridine, the potent new weapons against blood diseases and pneumonia. Sulfathiazol is not on the market yet, not having been admitted under the food and drug act by the secretary of agriculture.

TUBERCULAR CLINICS.

DALTON, Ga., Feb. 14.—Plans were announced this week by Dr. Charles F. Engelking, Whitfield county health commissioner, for holding a tubercular clinic here February 20 and March 1, in cooperation with the State Board of Health. It is planned to examine 150 patients.

'Double Pay' for Long Ride To See Actress

College Actresses From G. S. W. C. Have Chat With Katharine Cornell

By LEE ROGERS.

Brisk and dignified Katharine Cornell got downright chummy with the embryo actresses from G. S. W. C. who were "oozing" and "ahing" at her there on the Erlanger theater stage following her matinee performance yesterday.

She smiled and confessed, "It was so cold in the dressing room I had to put on woolies under this dress."

That eased the tension. As one, the 24 members of the school's Sock and Buskin dramatic club scrambled for autographs. Miss Cornell called for help, "Francis!" To the girls she said, "I'll get Mr. Lederer to help me autograph these."

Miss Cornell took a seat on one of the stage props and invited three of the visiting college girls to sit with her for a photograph.

The girls were a little bashful—but only for a moment. Then they all tried to get in the photo.

"I have hundreds of these made every day," the actress said. "But you can't get it made every day with us." Inez Taylor, of Greensboro, Ga., countered.

Miss Cornell politely asked if they liked the play. They did.

"It's a play that holds up. It's better the second time—I always try to sell a couple of seats with that line."

The girls were crowding Mr. Lederer now. They chattered freely with him.

"We love the way you talk."

"And the way you walk."

Mr. Lederer feigned embarrassment and gallantly replied: "I love the way you talk. I'd give anything if I could talk with your accent."

He asked all about their dramatic club and questioned the actresses of their next play, "First Lady," about the interpretation of their parts. They asked Mr. Lederer about his return to the movies. He promised to start a picture about May, then he shook hands with each of the girls, and departed with:

"I'm glad I'm not as important as Miss Cornell. I'd hate to feel responsible for causing you girls to drive until 3 o'clock in the morning just because you wanted to see my play."

PUBLIC DEFENDERS

ASKED BY JACKSON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—(AP)—Attorney General Jackson urged Congress today to establish a system of public defenders in federal district courts.

"It would be an important step in the improvement of the administration of criminal justice," Jackson wrote the Senate and House judiciary committees. "Not only does it assure proper representation by counsel to an individual defendant, but it makes a considerable contribution in the direction of eliminating delays and technicalities."

STANDARDS IN LAW TO BE STUDIED HERE

Important Regional Bar Meeting Will Consider Control Measures.

Means of integrating efforts of the American Bar Association to improve educational and ethical standards of lawyers and the general administration of law will be evolved here Saturday, in a regional conference attended by Charles A. Beardsley, of Oakland, Cal., association president.

The conference, termed one of the most important ever held in Atlanta, will discuss detailed plans to make regional, state and local arms of the association more effective in disciplining members and exercising control measures in the public interest.

Participants will include John L. Tye Jr., president of the Georgia Bar Association; Raymer F. Maguire, of Orlando, Fla., conference chairman; Richard T. Reeves, Dan H. Redfearn, George C. Green, Fred I. Sutton and Charles W. Muldrow, presidents of Alabama, Florida, North Carolina and South Carolina state bar organizations.

All of the visitors will be honor guests at a dinner at the Ansley hotel Saturday night, given jointly by the Georgia Bar Association, Atlanta Bar Association and Atlanta Lawyers' Club. Wives of visitors and hosts will attend.

STATE EXPORTS UP, IMPORTS DECREASE

Georgia's exports increased materially during 1939 while its imports decreased more than $2,000,000, W. H. Shroder, Atlanta district office manager, bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, announced yesterday.

For the 12 months ending with December, 1939, the state exported a total of $23,178,586 worth of goods, as compared with exports of $19,961,909 in 1938. Its imports last year totaled $10,056,435 while imports for 1938 came to $12,138,506.

Export trade last December totaled $2,402,019, favorable in comparison with the figure of $1,613,075 for December, 1938. Imports dropped sharply during the same period.

EX-BOSS OF BOOKIES LOSES COURT FIGHT

Sam R. Beard's Habeas Corpus Plea Denied by U. S. Judge.

Sam R. Beard, former boss of the race track bookies in Washington, D. C., yesterday lost his latest attempt to get out of the federal penitentiary on the wings of a writ of habeas corpus.

Before the writ had time to grow wings sufficiently strong to support a man of Beard's build, Judge E. Marvin Underwood in federal district court dismissed it, thereby leaving a blue Beard to serve the remainder of his two to six-year sentence.

Beard, through his Washington attorney, James Laughlin, last week pleaded that he was convicted on evidence obtained by tapping the wires of some of his 500 telephones. Since his trial, the supreme court of the United States has ruled wire tapping on inter and intra-state conversations illegal even when done by officers.

But, said Judge Underwood yesterday, summing up his denial of freedom for Mr. Beard, "It is sufficient to state that the mere admission of illegal testimony is not sufficient to destroy the jurisdiction of the trial court, nor does it constitute sufficient ground upon which to sustain a writ of habeas corpus."

And that was the end of Beard's third attempt to fly out of the federal pen on a habeas corpus.

DEKALB ROAD FORCE ADDS 50 WORKERS

Four More Machines To Speed Repair of Ice, Snow Damage.

The addition of four new road scrapers and 50 men to the DeKalb county road division was announced yesterday by Commissioner Scott Candler as he ordered a concentrated resurfacing program to repair $150,000 in damages caused by the recent ice and snow storms.

Nearly 1,200 miles of dirt road, some of which is impassable, will receive first attention, Commissioner Candler said, in the restoration project, which will take over one month. The 400 miles of paved road will be repaired in the spring.

With normally four road repair squads in action, Candler increased the staff to 10 squads with a personnel of 150 convicts and 50 machinists, operating scrapers and rollers. The county rented four additional scrapers for the project.

Commissioner Candler said that following the completion of the dirt road repair work, attention would be given asphalt highways which were cracked and pitted by the ice. He said resurfacing probably would be necessary on Memorial drive, Ashby Park road, North Druid Hills road, and the Stone Mountain-Redan highway.

Seven DeKalb county schools were forced to close last week as school buses found rural roads impassable. But few, however, are now closed to traffic, Candler said. The damage generally is erosion, ruts and pits. DeKalb county is second only to Fulton county in total road mileage.

DECISION IS GIVEN IN HOSPITAL CASE

State Supreme Court Rules in $210,000 Claim.

The Georgia supreme court yesterday affirmed a lower court ruling in the case of Mrs. Idella Holmway Nisbet, who is seeking $210,000 from trustees of the Jesse Parker Williams hospital.

The justices affirmed the lower court decision in overruling the demurrer of the defendants, although they said one incorrect reason was assigned.

Mrs. Nisbet claimed that Mrs. Cora B. Williams, who set aside the hospital fund in her will, was indebted to the late Mr. Nisbet in the sum of $210,000 and interest, and that no part of the money had been paid.

'SCOTTSBORO' PLEAS TO BE HEARD TODAY

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Feb. 14.—(AP)—Alabama's new board of pardons and paroles will hear freedom pleas tomorrow of the five "Scottsboro" defendants still in prison.

Dr. Allan Knight Chalmers, New York minister, presented the applications, contending the five negroes had been punished sufficiently.

Former United States Senator J. Thomas Heflin, who opposed clemency pleas of the men before former Governor Bibb Graves, when the latter denied freedom, has indicated he will appear to protest again.

GANNETT TO SPEAK HERE FEBRUARY 24

New York Publisher, Seeking Presidency, Will Make 'Stump' Tour.

Frank Gannett, New York state newspaper publisher and candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, will visit Atlanta Saturday, February 24, for an address.

The address in Atlanta will be one of the seven major talks which Mr. Gannett plans to make in a swing through the nine southern and western states. In addition, he plans to speak before some 20 luncheon groups during the trip, which will be made by airplane.

The swing will start at St. Petersburg, Fla., February 23. Other major addresses will be made at Tulsa, Okla., February 27; Dallas, Texas, February 28; Tucson, Ariz., February 29; Phoenix, Ariz., March 1; Los Angeles, March 4, and Miami, Fla., March 9.

Efforts to improve the Florida Everglades are being initiated by conservationists who say that 25 per cent of the area has been almost ruined for agricultural use by fires.

HOUSE BODY BACKS HULL TRADE PACTS

Democrats Force Ways, Means Committee Approval of Policy's Extension.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—(AP)—Fourteen of 15 Democratic members of the House ways and means committee said in a report today that "our highest national interests" require continuance of the reciprocal trade agreements program.

The report, approving a three-year extension of the program from next June 12, contended that abandonment would serve notice to the world that the United States had given up its position of leadership "as a peace-loving nation."

Valentines Pour Upon Veteran, 91, Inmate of Home

It was a merry St. Valentine's Day for Colonel J. A. Skelton, 91-year-old veteran of the War Between the States, who received 30 greeting cards yesterday at the Confederate Soldiers' Home.

The cards, individually addressed to him, came from the Tennessee chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy at Marietta. Colonel Skelton is the last survivor of Cobb county veterans who fought in the war.

Along with the valentine cards were a box of candy, and another of handkerchiefs, sent by anonymous well-wishers. Other veterans at the home also received greetings during the day, but none carried off as large a bundle of envelopes as Colonel Skelton.

His comment: "My gosh!"

Popcorn that expands 20 times its size when popped will be considerably more tender than corn that expands only 10 times.

Barbara's Dad, Here, Admits She Is 'Too Fast for Me'

Hutton Says He Doesn't Know When Heirss Will Wed Sweeney.

By WILLARD COPE.

If you're running a temperature from worry over whether Barbara Hutton Mdivani Haugwitz-Reventlow is going to marry curly-headed Golfer Robert Sweeney, as is currently bruited about in all the nicer night clubs and watering places, there's no use asking her old man anything about it.

He just plain don't know.

Nor was he backward about saying so last night when he flew in from Charleston on his way west to get some dry, hot climate for a deep bronchial cold.

"That little girl is too fast for me," he admitted, genially, his blue eyes twinkling through thick lenses and under a very tricky Alpine type of hat with a rope for a band. "I gave up long ago trying to keep in touch."

"She's strictly on her own and running her own affairs. The days when the old folks had anything to do with the young folks' intentions are definitely over. It's just like I told—but maybe I better not go on."

"No," agreed his tall, circum-spect English secretary, David Marchbank, "maybe you'd better not."

So he didn't go on.

As for Palm Beach and its well press-agented pleasures, they bore him.

"I was down there—let's see—about a month ago, and I got tired, so I went back to the plantation. I've been there since. I left to go find some decent air and weather for this cold I've got."

The particular weather he wants is on tap at the moment at the Casa Hot Springs, 70 miles north of Phoenix, Ariz., so it was he for Arizona at 6:30 o'clock after a 20-minute stop to change Delta Air Line planes.

Even as Hutton was flying here from the plantation on Youngs Island, outside Charleston, S. C., his principal home these days, news photograph services were wirephotographing gripping likenesses of Sweeney, ex-British amateur champion, telling of new Palm Beach triumphs on the links, or course.

Barbara wasn't in the pictures yesterday, but bales of them showing her and her supposed fiancé going around at the fashionable resort have come along lately, and the story is that it won't be long now.

U. S. Jury Indicts 'Captain' Hay On a Charge of Impersonation

Personable Prisoner in Fulton Tower Cut Wide Swath in Marietta Society With Promises of Free Rides in an Army Plane.

By FRANK DRAKE.

Harold Henry Hay, that charming young man the high society of Marietta took into its hearts and pocketbooks last fall, had another coil of the long arms of the law wrapped around his neck yesterday.

The federal grand jury—not at all impressed by Hay's winning ways, indicted him on a charge of impersonating a captain in the United States air corps and thereby obtaining $23 from Robert H. Northcutt of Marietta, $40 from Guy Henderson, of Atlanta, and $35.92 from Ivy Womack, of Marietta.

Given Gala Reception.

"Captain Hay" representing himself to be the youngest officer of that rank in the air corps, stormed the fortresses that surround Marietta's high society with such success that had it been a real battle he probably would have been cited for a Congressional medal. Into the best homes he was escorted, to be wine and dined and lionized such as few visitors to the capital of Cobb county ever receive.

He charmed not only the young and impressionable but he "took" the hard bitten businessmen to the tune of plenty of dollar marks. The dashing young aviator found credit in the stores a simple thing. Anyone would cash his checks. Life was very lovely.

Promised Plane Rides.

"Captain Hay" promised many Mariettans to ride them in his army airplane in return for their many favors, 'tis said. But when the time came, "Captain Hay" had mysteriously vanished from his haunts. Federal men "grounded" the young aviator in a little Alabama town—where "Captain Hay" was again the social lion. "Captain Hay" is in now to callers at Fulton tower.

Among other indictments returned yesterday were those against 17 persons charged with violation of the internal revenue

GROUP WILL STUDY RELIGIOUS TRAINING

Special Committee of School Body To Consider Sutton Proposal.

Every phase of a proposal by Dr. Willis A. Sutton, school superintendent, to give graduation requirement credits to junior and senior high school students for religious training will be studied, D. F. McClatchey Jr., chairman of a special board of education committee named to investigate the feasibility of the program, said last night.

Ed S. Cook, board president, named McClatchey as chairman and placed Mrs. Z. V. Peterson and the Rev. H. Jack Penn on the special group.

McClatchey said he will confer with other members before setting a time for the first meeting of the committee, probably next week.

At the initial meeting the group is expected to designate leading ministers representing various beliefs and prominent citizens as co-committeemen to help study the plan.

Briefly, Sutton proposed that a student receive a one-half credit for attending Sunday school, 80 per cent of the time for the three years he is in junior or senior high schools; another one-half credit for attending church on the same basis, and one full credit for attending a church Bible school once a week for a year while attending either a junior or senior high school.

The Atlanta schools require 14 credits for graduation from the junior highs and another 14 in senior high schools.

Sutton yesterday emphasized that any child could attend the church, Sunday school or Bible school of his choice and get the credits, or he may do other work and not elect to take the religious training.

All Theaters Except Grand Have Changes in Programs

Fox Presents "Four Wives"; Grand, "G.W.T.W."; Rialto, "Nick Carter, Detective"; Paramount, Double Feature; Roxy, Stage Show; Capitol, "Night of Nights."

By LEE ROGERS,
Motion Picture Editor.

For the first time in some weeks, Atlanta faces a theater week with new shows at all theaters save one, the Grand, where "Gone With the Wind" goes into its 10th and final week.

Changing program today is the Roxy which offers a stage show and feature picture—the Renfro Valley Barn Dance in person and Ann Shirley in "Career" on the screen. The Capitol opened yesterday for four days with "The Night of Nights," starring Pat O'Brien, Olympe Bradna, and Roland Young.

Opening tomorrow, the Rialto will offer a Nick Carter detective mystery; the Paramount has "Housekeeper's Daughter," with Joan Bennett, and "Prison Without Bars" as a companion feature.

"FOUR DAUGHTERS" BECOME "FOUR WIVES"

A sequel to "Four Daughters" in which all the girls find husbands and babies is found at the Fox opening tomorrow under the title of "Four Wives" which is as humanly poignant as was the original.

The cast is about the same. Remember Mickey Bowden (John Garfield) who married Priscilla Lane and was later killed? There are flash backs to him taken out of the first picture though he per-

WEST END THEATER WILL COST $40,000

Work To Start on Structure Which Will Seat 1,250 Persons.

Construction of a $40,000 community theater, equipped with the luxury of a downtown playhouse, at Gordon street and Gordon place, in West End, will be begun within the next two weeks, Lucas & Jenkins announced yesterday.

The new theater will be the largest neighborhood playhouse in Atlanta, with a seating capacity of 1,250 persons including a balcony, which in itself is something unusual for a neighborhood theater. Average seating capacity of an Atlanta neighborhood theater is only 600.

Plans call for a fireproof building with marquee, basement and mezzanine. They are being drawn by Henry H. Jordan, local architect, and the construction will be done by the Capitol Construction Company, it was announced.

The theater will be operated in addition to the two other Lucas & Jenkins theaters already in the West End area, the West End theater at 589 Lee street, S. W., and the Cascade theater at 1340 Gordon street, S. W.

continuous run of a first-run picture in Atlanta, one which probably will never be beaten. Approximately 190,000 persons have seen GWTW at Loew's.

"NICK CARTER, DETECTIVE" ARRIVES IN TOWN

Nick Carter in screen person arrives in Atlanta tomorrow. His headquarters will be at the Rialto theater.

There never was, in all fiction, a detective half so clever, brave and smart as Nick Carter. The younger generation probably knows of his powers only by hearsay, but in Dad's day he was the Superman of literature. Granddad always got out the family switch and ordered a little session in the woodshed, however, when he caught Dad reading the "dime" detective stories.

"Nick Carter, Detective" will star Walter Pidgeon in the title role with Rita Johnson, the beautiful blonde, as the feminine attraction. The story has been streamlined, but the famed detective does his customary thrilling stuff.

"HOUSEKEEPER'S DAUGHTER" HEADS DOUBLE BILL

Joan Bennett, more alluring than the famed Hedy Lamarr in her black wig and shapely cut dresses, opens tomorrow in the "Housekeeper's Daughter" which is the top attraction at the Paramount as it begins its second week on the double feature policy. The companion feature is "Prison Without Bars."

Miss Bennett and her allure is the top attraction here, but Hal Roach's "Housekeeper's Daughter" abounds with good support players—Adolphe Menjou, as the ace reporter with an eye more to shapely women than to shaping a story; William Gargan, as a news photographer who comes out second best to Menjou in the search for shapeliness; Peggy Wood, Tom Dugan, Donald Meek, Victor Mature, Lillian Bond and George E. Stone.

The plot deals with murder and murderers and a good scientist who'd rather be a poor police reporter. He's a rich man's son who adopts the housekeeper's daughter, Miss Bennett.

PAT O'BRIEN APPEARS WITH OLYMPE BRADNA

Pat O'Brien and Olympe Bradna are starred together again in "The Night of Nights," which opened yesterday at the Capitol theater.

Also in the case is Roland (Topper) Young. It is advertised as a romance with drama that touches the living, pulsing heart of the show business.

On the featured program are a Floyd Gibbons true adventure, "Three-Minute Fuse," Porky the Pig Cartoon, "The Giant Killer," and Pathe News.

BARN DANCE SHOW WILL OPEN TODAY

The Renfro Valley Barn Dance, featuring Block and Sully, opens today on the Roxy theater stage. The show is billed as "America's Favorite Radio Show." In the cast are also the Pine Ridge Boys, the Coon Creek Girls, who appeared before the King and Queen of England; Red Holley, Aunt Idy, Little Clifford, Slim Miller, Uncle Sunny, Shorty Hobbs, Si and Fanny and their tough mule.

On the screen Ann Shirley is starred in "Career," a R-K-O picture.

FILM EXECUTIVES MEET HERE TODAY

To Make Plans for Distributing "Dark Command."

An executive conference between producers and distributors of Republic Pictures is scheduled here today to discuss methods of distribution of the company's $1,000,000 production "Dark Command."

Attending the conference will be Herbert J. Yates, chairman of the board; James R. Grainger, vice president and general sales manager; Arthur C. Bromberg, president of Republic Pictures of the southeast; Carl Floyd, Atlanta; Cy Dillon, Charlotte; W. L. Snelson, Memphis; Henry Glover, Tampa; and L. V. Seichnayre, New Orleans.

FRONTIER VETERAN COMES TO ATLANTA

Captain Lloyd, Fast on the Draw, Knew Wild Bill Hickok.

A bit of the old west blew into town yesterday, spinning yarns about Wild Bill Hickok, Calamity Jane, Dock Holliday and some of the other frontier barroom characters he claimed as bosom pals.

He termed himself the last of the old soldiers of fortune and he revealed in the nickname "Burning Daylight."

Captain Jack Lloyd is the name "Calamity Jane" gave him when she adopted him after his family had been massacred by Indians. He grew up in barroom backrooms, sleeping on whisky bottles, always with Calamity Jane and Wild Bill Hickok. He kept the roughneck's from slapping him around, so he says.

Captain Jack was in the Deadwood bar when Jack McCall slipped in the back door and shot Wild Bill in the back. He was present when Dock Holliday fought side by side with Wyatt Earp as he tried to clean up Tombstone.

"I got my nickname, 'Burning Daylight,' because I could draw faster than anyone else," the gray-haired veteran of 72 winters said. "As deputy marshal and Texas ranger, I let the last daylight through 67 men in my day."

And "Burning Daylight" will bring out recent day newspaper clippings to prove his story.

Then again he said he got his nickname because of the speed with which he brought back the news of the settling of Dawson in Alaska.

"I met Jack London in the First and Last Chance Bar in Oakland, Calif. and he produced his character 'Burning Daylight,' after me. I traveled the world with him. I fought in the Boer war, was a British secret agent, fought with Teddy Roosevelt in the Spanish-American war, and with the Russian Cosacks against Japan."

But then you can hear the stories for yourself. "Burning Daylight," 10-gallon hat, 67-notched pistol and gray-haired tie in plaits down the side of his face will be featured in person at the Capitol theater tomorrow and Saturday.

Nearly $15,000 Is Donated To Tornado Fund in Atlanta

New Responses Expected by Red Cross and The Constitution; $100,000 Needed for Destitute Storm Sufferers at Albany; State Drive Continues.

Generous Atlantans, stirred by the plight of victims of the Albany tornado, virtually had reached $15,000 last night in contributions toward the state-wide $100,000 relief fund to be administered by the Red Cross. The precise figure was $14,409.66 at the day's close, and it was felt certain additional responses to the appeal would be forthcoming. The Atlanta chapter and The Constitution received $1,050.50 during the day, and through other channels an additional $183 was given.

Chapters of the Red Cross throughout the state were active, and while the Georgia total was not available, officials were confident that the required sum would be obtained quickly.

The money was being disbursed to restore individuals, and to provide clothing, food and other necessities. No worthy case will be ignored, according to Stone Crane, national relief director heading the work at Albany.

It was emphasized that the need is great and that contributions of any proportion will be welcomed. These may be made through The Constitution, direct to the Atlanta chapter's headquarters at 86 1-2 Luckie street, or to any of the 150 separate chapters in Georgia cities and towns.

GEORGIANS RUSH FUNDS FOR STRICKEN
ALBANY, Ga., Feb. 14.—(AP)—Sympathetic Georgians rushed to the aid of this tornado-stricken city as business and civic leaders pressed forward with their dream of raising "the south's most beautiful city" from windmade ruins. All over the state the story of quick and generous response to the immediate relief needs of the homeless and injured was repeated. Thomasville sought to boost by $1,500 the $10,000 already sent to Albany, extending the campaign launched just a few hours after the tornado struck, when the Times-Enterprise spread a two-

U. S. HOUSING FUNDS LIKELY FOR ALBANY

Head of State Authority Says Washington Favors Proposed Work.

Belief that tornado-stricken Albany will be able to obtain appropriations for housing projects from the United States Housing Authority was expressed yesterday by State Treasurer George B. Hamilton, who returned from a trip to Washington, where he conferred with Housing Authority Administrator Oscar Strauss.

Hamilton, who is director of the Georgia Housing Authority, said he had not been assured of any definite amount of money, but explained that if Albany would make application, he was of the opinion the funds would be forthcoming.

The housing director explained that the housing funds would have to be used for slum clearance, but added that part of Albany's work already had been accomplished by the tornado which wrecked many homes.

Hamilton said he believed the city should ask for at least $750,000. It would be possible, he thinks, to get both a white and Negro project.

He left yesterday afternoon for a meeting today with a group of farmers in Macon on rural housing. He was accompanied by Rudolf Nedved, co-ordinator of rural housing for the United States Housing Authority, and H. M. Colvin, chairman of the national interdivisional committee on rural housing.

ALBANY OFFICIALS PRAISE WPA HELP

Quick Aid Reaps Harvest of Grateful Messages.

The WPA, which has been the object of many a joke about guys leaning on shovels, yesterday was reaping a harvest of praise for its work following the Albany tornado last Saturday morning.

Officials of Albany and Dougherty county sent messages of congratulation to Robert MacDougall, state WPA administrator, for slashing through the usual red tape and coming to their aid immediately—when they needed it most.

Hamilton said he believed the city should ask for at least $750,000. It would be possible, he thinks, to get both a white and Negro project.

If 'South Pole' Hops a Bit, Why Worry, Yawns Howey

Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd must have received quite a start when, according to an Associated Press dispatch yesterday, he arrived at the South Pole and found it wasn't there. It had moved, he said, westward.

The fact that the admiral made his observation at a place called Drygalski peninsula might have some bearing on the pole's mysterious exodus to the west. All he reported was that it wasn't where it was in 1909.

But there is no cause for alarm. Dr. J. H. Howey, head of the Georgia Tech physics department, merely yawned when informed of the phenomenon and said, "It's doing that all the time—here today and gone tomorrow."

According to Dr. Howey, the south magnetic field, not pole, is a spot where the electrical charges of the earth and of the atmosphere converge and diverge. Temperature and atmospheric conditions sometimes cause the electrical charges to flow along different circuits. Sun spots enter into the general confusion, also.

The effect is that the field, which covers an area of 10 miles, moves about from time to time, but doesn't bother anybody except short wave radio enthusiasts and people who tinker with compasses.

In fact, since 1909, when civilization first recognized that there was a South Pole, the magnetic field has popped up in four different locations. Admiral Byrd is

STATSBORO MOTORIST KILLED IN NIGHT CRASH

CLAXTON, Ga., Feb. 14.—(AP)—Ellis Y. DeLoach, prominent Statesboro resident, was killed in an automobile accident near here last night. His body was found near his wrecked car this morning by the driver of a bread truck. The vehicle left the road and crashed into two trees.

Survivors include the wife and three children.

Funeral services will be held at Statesboro tomorrow.

certain it isn't at Drygalski any more, nor at two other possible locations. He didn't say anything about the fourth one.

Dr. Howey doesn't know where the South Pole—south magnetic field—is either. He just yawns. "Down there," That ought to be good enough for anybody.

Jersey Dresses, Fringe Trim Come to the Fore in Stars' Forecast for Spring

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 14.—Eye-let embroidery, a flattering and smart fabric, is combined with black crepe in the new dinner gown worn by Brenda Marshall, who appears next in Warner's "The Sea Hawk." The embroidery is used in a novel manner on the bodice and looped out at the sides to give a peg-top impression. The skirt is cut full from the natural waistline.

Fringe is one of the in-again-out-again fashions. At the moment it's in, with many movie actresses wearing costumes showing entire skirts of fringe in tiers or long, single strands. Binnie Barnes has a boxy coat of white fringe which, from a distance, appears like myriads of tiny plumes. The coat at hip length shows the fringe set on in five-inch tiers from a rounded yoke of white flannel serge, and there's a tiny cardinal's cap that matches to fit snugly at the crown of her curls. Binnie wears this unusual coat with a slim black crepe frock.

Some more items from the Deanna Durbin wardrobe in her new picture, "It's a Date." A fresh style angle on culottes is the khaki-gray wool covert cloth designed to look like a flared skirt with military crease running down center front and back of each leg. . . . White, lacy straw on a hat complements the lingerie trim of her spring dresses.

Among promises for spring are the new jersey prints selected by Nan Grey, now playing the leading feminine role in Universal's "The Invisible Man Returns." Toning shades of green form a large leaf pattern on a background of gray jersey. New lines are shown in low-placed skirt fullness and bloused top. A wide leather kidskin belt of green girdles the waistline.

Mae West as a belle of the '90s, continues to make fashion trends with provocative gowns in "My Little Chickadee," in which she stars with W. C. Fields. Mae wears a street costume of light brown satin-back crepe with contrasting trim of brown and white-checked taffeta. Like her other gowns for this picture, it is styled in the 1890 period. High-lighting her costume is a matching parasol made of the same fabric as the dress and repeating the note of trim.

With another dress Mae uses passamontiere to accent a black tricot dressy street suit. It is worked in jet over a red background.

Flora Robson, the English actress, appears almost American-

Man Was Under The Influence Of Insulin

By Dr. William Brady.

A man with a clean record as a driver drove his car very slowly between two lines of traffic. He managed to collide with three cars in the left side line. The drivers of the cars emitted the usual polite remonstrances, but the man paid them no heed. A truck stood waiting for the signal a few yards ahead, so the man took a crack at the truck, so to speak, caromed off, skidded a ways and finally came to a standstill on the pavement. He was doing well enough up to that point. Then the cop caught up with him, saw the man was dazed and not quite conscious of what was said to him. After all, there's a situation where you need all your wits about you, unless, of course, you're Irish.

Well, you may have just one more guess if you like. No, no, the man had not had a drop. Indeed it would have been far better if he had stopped somewhere for a quick one before he tackled the traffic, that is, if he had made it straight grape juice, milk, well sweetened tea or an ice cream soda. For it developed that the man had been under the influence of insulin and in no condition to drive a car. So the judge fined him one buck and ordered him to pay $42 costs and suspended his license for five years with the understanding that he might apply for revision of the suspension if and when he became fit after six months.

ou see, the man had taken the dose of insulin his physician had prescribed. But improvement had taken place more rapidly than he realized, so that the dose of insulin which had formerly been just enough now proved too much, with the usual result of too much insulin, too great a reduction of the blood sugar, a state which doctors call hypoglycemia. Insulin shock is hypoglycemia. But hypoglycemia is not necessarily insulin shock, at least it may occur in other circumstances than diabetes in individuals who have never had a dose of insulin. And in such cases the lowering of the blood sugar level may be moderate and give rise merely to some vague distress, apathy, vague anxiety or ill humor which the victim may not realize is essentially hunger, unless he or his friends notice the quick restoration to normalcy after he takes some food.

In some instances the lowering in blood sugar brings more serious disturbances and strange behavior which is often considered drunkenness or lapse of consciousness closely resembling petit mal (minor epilepsy) or even convulsions like grand mal (major epilepsy).

The automobile driver whose case is cited above deserved the punishment imposed by the court. No one who receives insulin treatment has a right to drive a car or assume any other responsibility which concerns the safety of others, for it can never be predicted whether or when such a person may experience insulin shock (lowered blood sugar, hypoglycemia) and become temporarily incapable of using good judgment. It is different with the individual who does not take insulin for diabetes or other ailment but suffers from the spells of hypoglycemia—that is, until the nature of the trouble is recognized.

"Well, I am ready—" is what Miss Sara Cothan Smith, at the left, may be saying in this attractive model. The combination is designed for daintiness and suggests pink and white candy. The skirt is pink angora attached to a white dotted cravat silk top and is finished with a jacket of pink angora wool. The Leaning tower of Pisa may have had some influence on her hat of Italian straw—notice the angle it perches on her dark hair. It is pink rough straw finished with an ostrich tip of black silk and a black chenille dotted veil. Her suede gloves and bag are mint pink. This fireside chat apparently had good results according to the smiling countenance, of Miss Carol Knight, in the center, who looks as smart as she does happy. Her outfit is a jacket dress of white pebble crepe with devastating feminine touches of soft blue Venetian lace trimming the waistline and sleeves. The real headline in this fashion write-up is her hat which is a snail draped turban of heaven blue French knit jersey, which is definitely tops this season. Turbans are flattering to all types because of the variety of their "twistings."

Notice the imported necklace of white and gold. Strike up the band now, for here comes Miss Knight again, and this time she has the brass buttons and all. The dress is soft beige wool and jacket, of the same material, is trimmed with brass buttons and white pique is used on the jacket as a piping. The hat is a deadringer for popularity and is a beige feather cloche with black French veil giving an alluring touch. The hat is held to Miss Knight's head by a band of imported black jersey. Call Lillian Mae at Walnut 5365, at The Constitution, for the prices.

Old-Fashioned Style

By Lillian Mae.

4392

Favorite of your own "little red schoolhouse" days, that demure old-fashioned style, the pinafore, makes this season's newest! See how charmingly Lillian Mae has designed Pattern 4392! The dainty pinafore is in just a few pattern parts, with a full gathered skirt and a perky back bow. The dress itself has puffy sleeves and side bodice sections that may be frilled. Leave the neckline round, or sew on a small collar, perhaps in contrast. Don't miss the sweet bonnet with its wide, stitched sunshade and saucy bow! The apron and bonnet would be adorable in snowy white over a gayly printed frock.

Pattern 4392 is available in children's sizes 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10. Size 6, pinafore and bonnet, takes 21-2 yards 35-inch fabric; dress, 15-3 yards 35-inch fabric.

Selfish Love Will Result in Tragedy for Mother and Son

Only One Way for This Boy To Break Away From Home

By Caroline Chatfield.

Dear Miss Chatfield: When I was eight years old my mother and father were divorced and I have always lived with my mother. I love her devotedly and have helped her ever since I was able to work. Now that I'm 21 I want to go with the girls, but if I have a date there's a row at home. She resents my spending a cent on anybody but her and doesn't even want me to save for a special engineering course I wish to take. She's a young woman and capable of earning her own living, which I think she should do, but I haven't the courage to talk it over with her. I know she would blow up because she would suspect that I was beginning to think of marriage. I'm my own man now and not satisfied to sit at home with her and twiddle my thumbs. Your help will be appreciated. J.

Answer: My dear boy, your mother is building up for a tragedy in your life and hers, though of course she hasn't a glimmering of what it's all about. Her marriage wrecked, she has lavished on you the love she might have had for a husband as well as the love for an only child. She has lost sight of everything but filling her own life and you are paying the total bill. That's no reason for your permitting her to wreck your hope of happiness.

Then get down to business and tell her the whole blunt truth: namely, that you have tried to make up to her for all she's lost, supported her, stayed by her side. But now that you are your own man you're going to see the girls, spend part of your money on pleasures and eventually get married and live in a separate home from her. Furthermore, you should put it up to her as strongly as you can that it is her duty to go to work and support herself, not only because it will relieve you of heavy expense but because it will give her an interest in life.

Yes, she will raise the roof, kick and scream, tell you how she's given up everything for you and got ingratitude in return. Yes, she will tell you that you are exactly like your father which will be meant for insult. Yes, she will raise every imaginable objection to your plan. To all of which you should reply firmly and kindly: "Nevertheless, this is my decision and I'm sorry if you think me cruel."

When Necessary To Take Chance To Win, Take It

By Harold Sharpsteen.

When it is necessary to take a chance to win, the chance, of course, should be taken, but when game can be assured without taking any chance, the player, who misses, is not playing up to par. None other than Sidney Lenz takes credit for discovering game possibilities in this hand after watching declarer go down to defeat.

The final contract went to South at notrump. West opening the spade 2. South held off until the third round of spades and then unleashed his long club suit to discover East was void of clubs.

TAKES UNNECESSARY CHANCE.

What a break, holding nine clubs with three top honors. Yet, declarer actually fumbled in the shadow of the goal posts for he could have made three notrump with no difficulty by deliberately giving the first club trick, which would have left an entry in dummy. Six club tricks and the three aces.

After the spade ace was removed from South's hand there was no re-entry, so a club trick should have been given to assure the contract against every possible contingency.

COUNT SURE WINNERS.
But who would have ever thought of making such a play, except kibitzers who see two hands and second-guessers who have the opportunity to replay a deal at double dummy, you say.

MY DAY: No More Official Engagements Until March

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON.—Yesterday afternoon was a fairly busy one. First of all, the Society of Sponsors, who are holding their annual meeting here, came to tea. Then, at about 3:30, the members of the American Youth Congress assembly, who had been holding their final meetings all day, came to tea. I have never seen a more appreciative group and was impressed by their interest in the White House and their admiration of the new Lincoln portrait hanging in the state dining room. So many people pay no attention to their surroundings, and it was interesting to note how wide awake and appreciative these youngsters were.

I feel that their program for work is good. It calls for councils to survey for jobs in different localities and to open up as many new opportunities as possible, as well as for a method of keeping before communities the situation in which great numbers of young people find themselves. This is a constructive program. Of course, this method is the way by which they hope to show people that, until jobs are available to young people who are ready and willing to work, the American youth act must fill the gap. The act provides, among other things, for a permanent National Youth Administration with a much larger grant of money, $500,000,000 in fact, to give both vocational guidance and training and work at prevailing wages on public projects to all unemployed young people.

In the evening I went to speak to the Monday Evening Club, a group of people in Washington who are concerned with civic betterment and who have worked a long time on improving conditions from various angles.

This morning I had a swim before a rather late breakfast. I feel, because I have no more official engagements in Washington until March, that I have already begun a holiday, even though there will be two days at the end of this week when I shall be working very hard—one in Tallahassee and one in Daytona Beach, Fla. I don't suppose that tomorrow and Thursday in Ithaca, N. Y., will be, on the whole, a period of rest and inactivity. I shall tell you more about that as we go along.

I want to remind people who are interested in the progress that women have made, that today is Susan B. Anthony's birthday. I seem to me that, in the words of Rheta Childe Dorr, "every woman who holds a job, who goes to college, who is a lawyer, doctor, scientist, teacher, as well as every woman who votes or holds office, owes to Susan B. Anthony a debt of gratitude that can never be paid."

Sometimes we forget how rapidly changes have come about for women and how much progress has been made toward their participation as persons in the life of our nation.

Learn the Exotic Conga—It's Tops in Dancing

The exotic Conga—the favorite dance of debutantes, the darling of society!

Yes, you're strictly out of it in smart places if you can't dance the Conga. But very much in, if you can.

And when you have diagrams, instructions to show you how, you quickly learn its steps and variations—other smart dances too.

Some of the Most Nutritious Meats Are Least Expensive

By Ida Jean Kain.

Some of the most nutritious foods are to be found at the bottom of the butcher's price list! Attention was called recently to this group by "The Market Basket," a guide to both economy and good nutrition, published by the United States Department of Agriculture, at Washington, D. C.

From the nutritionist's standpoint, a pot roast is as good as porterhouse steak any day in the week. And, strangely enough, beef liver, which costs much less than calves' liver, is nutritionally more valuable.

It does not seem to matter which part of the cow the cut comes from. The part that is exercised is, of course, the toughest. But it can be cooked longer and the extra cost of fuel for longer cooking is slight in comparison with the saving on the grocery bill.

Except for calves' liver, the meat organs are inexpensive. Moreover, the heart, kidneys, brains and liver, which are so much richer in vitamins than some of the muscle meats, are excellent sources of protein.

If you lack experience in marketing for these meats, there are a few rules by which the quality may be judged. The kidneys, heart and liver should be bright in color. Fresh brains are a pinkish gray. You should avoid flat kidneys, flabby hearts, and brains that are broken into bits. The texture of the liver should be fine-grained. The organs should be full and well-rounded, showing they come from healthy young animals. Since all the organs spoil quickly unless frozen, they should be used immediately after thawing.

The tender organs should be cooked at a moderate temperature. To retain the flavor, care should be taken not to overcook them. The less tender organs, such as the beef kidneys and muscular hearts, should be simmered slowly and for a long time. Slow cooking is necessary to make the connective tissue of the hearts tender.

Stew meats of all kinds are inexpensive and, cooked with vegetables, highly nutritious.

Meat is a considerable item in the reducer's menu—the amount of protein is never decreased. It frequently even is stepped up a bit, for science has discovered that weight can be lost much more rapidly on a high protein diet.

As far as reducing goes, the important thing to watch—in cheap or expensive cuts of meat—is the method of cooking. Meats never should be fried. They should be boiled, broiled or baked.

On a menu restricted to 1,000 calories per day, the fat should be trimmed from the meat before cooking to prevent its infiltration into the lean part.

Educator and Democratic Leader Arrives For Visit to Mrs. Motley

By Sally Forth.

ARRIVING tomorrow to visit Mrs. Howard Motley at the Georgian Terrace is Charl Ormond Williams, that well-known educator who was born in Tennessee, but lives in the national capital at present. She was the first Democratic national committeewoman from Tennessee and first woman vice chairman of the Democratic national committee.

As co-organizer of International Federation of Business and Professional Women, she is best known to that group. From 1921 to 1922 she was president of National Education Association and is field secretary of that organization now.

Distinguished Miss Williams holds office in many other groups and belongs to such social organizations as Woman's National Democratic and Congressional Country clubs. Miss Williams is a D. A. R., and she holds membership in Phi Beta Kappa, Chi Omega and Delta Kappa Gamma. She resides at 2727 Connecticut avenue in Washington, D. C.

The record of the prominent visitor is published in Who's Who in America, and lots more could be written about Charl Williams in this column, but Sally Forth prefers to let Atlantans have a chance to find some things out for themselves.

WHEN John and Mary Ottley entertained a few close friends at dinner last evening in the Mirador room of the Capital City Club, the affair held significance, for it marked the eleventh anniversary of their wedding. Their marriage was a brilliant event, taking place at the old Second Baptist church.

Countless messages of congratulations poured in to the young couple upon the date of their anniversary, and the informal party last evening climaxed the auspicious date. Mary Ottley, you know, is the former Mary Harvey, beautiful and only daughter of Richard Harvey and the late Mrs. Harvey, of Denver, Colo., formerly of Atlanta.

MARGARET HARMON will enjoy a very grand spring vacation when she forsakes her textbooks at Hollins College in March to visit her classmate, Betty Jane Sundre, in Rochester, N. Y. For the Atlanta belle will be a bridesmaid in the marriage of her hostess to Arthur Tolson, of Dallas, Texas, on the evening of March 23, and will be an admired figure attending the many festivities preceding the ceremony.

Betty Jane, familiarly known as "B. J.," has frequently been a fêted visitor in this city, having been Margaret's guest upon several occasions at the home of her parents, the Howard Harmons, on Habersham road.

Proof of the close friendship existing between the two classmates is the fact that "B. J." elected to be married on a date to occur during spring vacation at Hollins when Margaret can attend her as bridesmaid.

The Atlanta sub-deb will arrive in Rochester on March 21 to spend a week as the guest of the attractive bride-elect, after which she will visit another classmate, Janet Sampson, in that city, who will also be an attendant in the brilliant wedding.

GRACING the society section in a recent edition of the Miami News were photographs of a duo of prominent Atlantans. On the attractive page symbolic of Valentine Day's appeared the charming likenesses of Betty Crenshaw and Jane Spalding. Betty, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Crenshaw, and Jane and her mother, Mrs. Alice Stewart Spalding, are spending some time with Dr. and Mrs. Joseph S. Stewart Jr. at their home in Coconut Grove.

Miss Southerland and Mr. White Announce Wedding Plans Today

Of important social interest throughout the state is the announcement today of the wedding plans of Miss Sara Hamilton Southerland, of this city and Athens, and William Penn White, of Americus, their marriage to feature the social calendar of the month in Athens.

The ceremony takes place at 5 o'clock on Saturday, February 24, at the Emanuel Episcopal church in Athens, with the pastor, Rev. David Cady Wright Jr., officiating in the presence of a gathering of relatives and friends and a number of out-of-town guests.

Henry de Leon Southerland will give his daughter in marriage, and Frank A. White, of Chicago, Ill., will be best man for his brother, Miss Elizabeth Hall, of Athens, will be maid of honor and only attendant for her cousin, Miss Southerland.

Acting as ushers will be Leon Southerland Jr. and Edwin Southerland, of Athens, brothers of the bride-elect, and Earl McKenzie, of West Point, Ga.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Southerland entertain at an informal reception at their home on Milledge avenue for their daughter and Mr. White. The bride couple will leave for a wedding trip to Florida and return to Americus where they will reside.

Miss Southerland has spent the past two days in the city with her aunt, Mrs. Hugh Lokely, on Fourteenth street, but left for her home in Athens where she was entertained yesterday at an informal party.

Miss Jamerson Weds Mr. Hindley At Grace Church

Miss Frances Jamerson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. R. Kimbrough, became the bride of William F. Hindley, son of Mrs. Lottie King, yesterday at the Grace Methodist church.

Rev. Henry H. Jones the pastor, officiated at high noon, and prior to and during the ceremony a musical program was presented by Mrs. Robert F. Cunningham, organist and soloist, and Charles Wynne, tenor.

White gladioli and baskets of Easter lilies were combined with rich greenery to form the decorations in the church. Candelabra held burning tapers.

Mrs. John T. Moore Jr. was matron of honor and only attendant, and was becomingly gowned in a pearly print combining blue and rose, which was unusually effective with her brunet loveliness. The dress was with a high neckline and a full swing skirt. Her flowers were sweetheart roses.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, P. R. Kimbrough, and was met at the altar by the groom and A. C. Shipman, who was best man.

The bride and groom left for a wedding trip to Florida, and upon their return will reside at 495 Angier avenue, N. E. The bride traveled in her wedding ensemble.

Tau Delta Thetas Plan Party Series

Founders' Day Will Be Observed By P.-T. A. Congress This Week

The Georgia Congress of Parents and Teachers, under the leadership of Mrs. J. S. Gordy, of Columbus, the president, this week will commemorate the founding of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers which began as a National Congress of Mothers in Washington, D. C., on February 17, 1897.

The co-founders of the first Congress of Mothers were Mrs. Alice Birney and Mrs. Phoebe Hearst. Mrs. Birney was born in Marietta, Ga., and Mrs. Hearst was a native of Missouri. Growing from an original 2,000 more than 2,222,000 members now belong to the national organization.

Mrs. Gordy points with pride to the approximately 48,000 members in the Georgia congress and the accomplishments in the state during the year. Mrs. Gordy states:

"Although ideals and purposes expressed by the founders are the methods have changed, and the promotion of the education and welfare of children and youth has grown to mean more than concern with material needs, and the giving of material gifts which chiefly embodied the first years' activities."

"The Georgia congress is endeavoring to promote a program of education that will co-ordinate home, school, and community activities for the development of the whole child. There is increasing concern with preventive and protective measures in health, recreation, juvenile protection and legislation."

"More discussions of conditions and the discipline of juvenile courts has given way to the promotion of the health and behavior clinics. The sentimentality connected with motherhood has developed into sentiment for parent education. The emphasis upon formal gymnastics has given way to the modern recreation program. The ideals and principles have not changed but have broadened."

The Atlanta Writers' Club meets at 7 o'clock in the banquet hall of the Atlanta Woman's Club.

The Lambda chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority meets at 6 o'clock at the Henry Grady hotel.

Miss Keener and John B. Porter Wed March 5 at Church Ceremony

Interest is centered today in the announcement of the wedding plans of Miss Mary Evelyn Keener and John B. Porter. The marriage of the popular couple will take place on March 5 at 5:30 o'clock at the Oakhurst Baptist church on East Lake drive. Rev. A. Byron Couch will officiate. A musical program will be rendered by Mrs. William McKinney, pianist.

Miss Keener will be given in marriage by her father, Frank E. Keener. Miss Edna Mae Keener will be maid of honor for her sister. The matron of honor will be Mrs. Winston Creech, a sister of the bride-elect. The bridesmaids will be Mrs. George Coffey, a sister of the bride-elect and Miss Marguerite Porter, the groom-elect's sister.

Albert E. West will be best man for Mr. Porter. The groomsmen and ushers will include Solon Couch, Charles Baggett, Winston Creech, and Frank Keener Jr. Among the many social affairs planned in honor of Miss Keener is the lingerie shower at which Mrs. William McKinney will entertain this evening at her home on Leland terrace.

On Saturday, the popular bride-elect will be honored guest at the miscellaneous shower to be given by Misses Mary Elder and Eleanor Swanson at the home of Miss Elder.

On the evening of February 23 Miss Keener will share honors with her fiancé at the buffet supper at which Miss Marguerite Porter will be hostess at her home on Third avenue in Decatur.

Misses Dorothy Couch and Nettie Ragan will be the bride-elect's bridesmaids. The bride-elect will be hostess at a buffet supper following the wedding rehearsal on the evening of March 4. The affair will take place at the home of the hostess on Cambridge avenue in Decatur. Other hostesses who will honor Miss Keener are Misses Alverta Sedgewick, Ann Wilhoit, and Mrs. J. Scott Blackstock, the dates of which will be announced later.

Mrs. Howard Motley Hostess at Luncheon For Miss Laura Hill

Mrs. Howard Motley entertained yesterday at the Georgian Terrace as a complimentary gesture to Miss Laura Hill, whose marriage to Dr. Joseph H. Boland takes place this evening. The lace-covered table was beautified with a silver altar topped with a bride and groom standing under floral arch made of lilies of the valley.

Tiny silver slippers filled with rice, wrapped in cellophane and tied with white satin ribbon bows, were attractive features of the decorative motif of the luncheon. Individual bouquets fashioned with pastel shaded flowers encircled the altar. White satin ribbons extended from the bouquets to the place of each guest who received a bouquet as a souvenir of the occasion. The bouquet in front of the place of the bride-elect was made of fragrant valley lilies, tied with silver ribbon. Cards embroidered in bouquets of pink, yellow, blue and green ribbon outlined with a white lace frill, marked the guests' places at the exquisitely appointed table.

Invited to meet Miss Hill were Mesdames Walter H. Hill, Frank K. Boland, A. Waldo Jones, Joe Horacek Jr., Marianna Adair, Sara Smith, Carolyn Malone, Charles Chester, Beverly Bailey, Margaret Chenoweth, of Birmingham, Ala., and Cornelia Larus, of Richmond, Virginia.

Yesterday afternoon Miss Hill and her fiancé were honored at the cocktail party given by Miss Sara Smith at the Piedmont Driving Club. Miss Smith will be Miss Hill's only attendant at this evening's important nuptials.

The guests, numbering 50, gathered in a private dining room at the club where pastel shaded flowers were used as the decorations.

Crackers Sign One of 91 Detroit Players Made Free Agents

SUYDAM, FORMER 'CAT OUTFIELDER, TO JOIN ATLANTA

Buster Chatham Recommended 22-Year-Old Star to Earl Mann.

By THAD HOLT.

Atlanta yesterday signed one of the 91 ball players declared free agents last month by Judge Landis in his destruction of the Detroit farm system. He is Jack Suydam, an outfielder who played last season with Fort Worth in the Texas League.

Cracker President Earl Mann, in making the announcement of Suydam's acquisition, declared the player had agreed to terms and that his contract was mailed yesterday.

"Suydam comes to us highly recommended," declared Earl, "and from all reports will be a strong contender for an outfield berth."

Johnny Rucker's sale to the Giants has left an opening in the outer works, unless Manager Richards sticks by his plan to move Marshall Mauldin back to center field. Holdovers are Emil Mailho and Wes Willie Duke. Mailho is regarded as a certainty for one of the outfield jobs, so it will be up to the former Fort Worth player to beat out Mauldin or Duke for a regular job, with chances good one of them will be retained for a utility role.

Since Suydam, Mailho and Duke are all left-handed batters it is held unlikely Manager Paul Richards will deem it unwise to have three portside-swinging outfielders in the lineup. Such a situation enhances Mauldin's prospects of holding down the job left by Rucker's departure.

Jack Suydam is only 22 years old and stands over six feet and weighs 180 pounds. He bats left and throws right.

Last season Suydam hit .285 in 137 games, not bad for a youngster who was up there swinging in what is known as a "pitchers' league." In 1937 Suydam hit .330 with Alexandria in the Evangeline League and he came back with Lake Charles in the same circuit the following season to clout .355.

One of those who recommended the free agent to the Crackers was Buster Chatham, former Atlanta shortstop, who played with Suydam last season at Fort Worth.

Decatur Aces Play Rockmart Tonight

Decatur's aces, composed of former Decatur High basketball stars, will play the highly touted Rockmart five tonight on the Rockmart court.

Lee Richards and Alf Anderson, two University of Georgia players several years back, will lead the Decatur team.

Alf is keeping in condition for baseball by playing basketball with the Aces. Alf is slated to hold down shortstop on the Crackers' squad this season.

BREADON CHECK.

ALBANY, Ga., Feb. 14.—(P)—Among storm relief contributions sent to Albany was a $200 personal check from Sam Breadon, owner of the St. Louis Cardinals baseball club. Breadon sent the money to Motie Wiggins, president of the Albany club of the Georgia-Florida league, asking that it be added to the relief fund.

All in the Game

—by Jack Troy

Just Plain Bill Old Bill's registered name is "Sonwise," but that's a little fancy for a couple of plain now-and-then hunters like Kenneth Rogers and me. So we prefer just plain "Bill." And I guess that we'd stack old Bill up against anything on four legs in the field.

Yep, Bill's a setter. But that doesn't prove anything about whether or not K. Rogers and this corpulent correspondent favor setters over pointers. Bill just happens to be our kind of a bird dog. He finds the birds.

It is not fair to old Bill to be burdened with a couple of such shots, but he doesn't seem to mind. There have been times when old Bill has got a little weary of waiting and lain down on the ground. When we found him he'd trail the covey again and come to what must be one of the most stylish of points.

We never really noticed if his tail was just so or if his back was arched properly or if he held his head in the right fashion. All we have known about old Bill is that he is a dogged good bird dog that finds the birds.

The Jordans—Fred and Uncle Charley—are really field trial men. They are wrapped up in Darhe, Rosetime and other such setters that have the manners peculiar to the trials. And yet we've noticed that propositions as to acquiring old Bill always have fallen on deaf ears. Fred and Charley hem and haw and change the subject.

So Sonwise will do until a better shooting dog comes along. There is really no question about the fact that he is bird smart.

Fancy Hunting It's pretty fancy hunting that they do at Monticello on Charley Jordan's old plantation grounds. You have a hot lunch served under the pines at noon and about all the walking that's ever done is from the horse to the luncheon spread and back to the horse.

The procedure is to start out just after sunup and ride through the heavy country. And it takes a little riding to keep up with old Bill and whatever fancy dog he's braced with.

Bill is a little unreasonable in his demands, but that's only because he is a bird hunter. Can't blame him for finding the covies and causing the party to hastily dismount and remount with great regularity.

Really there is no way to get over the grounds other than on horseback. Because it is rough country of a very strenuous sort, with plenty of brambles and thick underbrush.

It's a test for horse and dogs and for hunters, too, when it is necessary to trail a covey any distance.

But money couldn't buy a day in the field near Monticello following old Bill. By "first dark" you have had the ultimate in good hunting and have that refreshed feeling which comes of a day spent among the pines and thickets, with the soft wind fanning your face and the fragrant smell of the woods in your nose.

Show Goes On The Southern Amateur Field Trial Club at All-benny will go on with the annual trial, as scheduled. And the regional championship will follow immediately afterwards.

The amateur gets under way on Monday, following Sunday night's drawing at the New All-benny hotel. Barnes, kennels and grounds were untouched by the tornado. And quite a trial is assured. The regional championship is a new event for the state and to run a dog in the regional he must be a winner.

Hence the regional will supply a fitting climax to the All-benny program. President Bob Sealy sets forth in a letter that everything is set for the running.

The Last Straw Betsy Grant told this story on himself. It happened just after he returned home last year and had finally lost a match to an Australian player. The player was Harry Hopman.

Betsy relates that his mother met him and said, "Son, you're getting a little too old for such competition. The young fellows are catching up with you."

"Well, I think I screamed," Betsy pointed out. "Young fellows—that Hopman is five years older than I am!"

It still remains a fact that the only Australian ever to beat Betsy—and he has played them all—was Harry Hopman, non-playing captain of the Davis cup team. Hopman defeated Betsy in the nationals.

Schoolboy Rowe Predicts Tigers Will Win Pennant

YANKS OVERDUE FOR A CRACKUP, PITCHER THINKS

Detroit Has Been Playing in Tough Luck; Packs Dynamite.

LAKELAND, Fla., Feb. 14.—(P) Schoolboy Rowe's got a two-way hunch—he's had it all winter—and it definitely bodes no good for the New York Yankees, champions of the baseball world.

Here for a few days of golf before the Detroit Tiger training season opens February 25, the towering Lynwood today summed up his "vision" of the 1946 American League season in a few short words.

"The Yanks are due for that long-coming crackup, and the Tigers are going to have a terrific ball club."

He conceded that the Boston Red Sox might also get in the pennant race with New York and Detroit, "if they get a little pitching to go with their power," but he feels deep down in his bones that the Tigers are going to be the league's big news this year.

"We've been playing in tough luck for several years, but we've got the ball players and we'll be dynamite to stop," said the six-foot, four-inch, 200-pound right-hander.

NO EASY PICKING.

"Think of a batting order with McCosky, Gehring, Greenberg, York, Campbell, Higgins, Tebbetts and Bartell in it," he said, warning to his subject. "The Yankees can't offer anything to top it, and if you ask me their pitching staff is liable to pop wide open with all those old pros on it."

"Our pitching is open to question on the basis of last year, but my hunch tells me that Buck Newsom, Tommy Bridges and I will be three regular starters this season, and we'll have lots of help from Dizzy Trout, Fred Hutchinson, Archibald McLean and Al Benton. And I hear we've got some mighty promising rookies who may toss in a few wins here and there."

Rowe is slightly worried about the second base combination, but believes Charley Gehringer will be able to put in more time at second this year than last. And he hopes that Dick Bartell, obtained from the Cubs, will fill the shortstop hole. "That Bartell's a timely hit and could help us a lot," said Lynwood.

CAN DO IT.

As to the switch which sends Hank Greenberg from first base to the outfield in order to make room for Rudy York, there is only one doubt in Rowe's mind—"Hank can make the change successfully if he wants to—and I hope he'll try his darndest."

Rowe is gratified over the deal which brought Bruce Campbell to the Tigers from Cleveland.

"That Campbell is the toughest man in baseball for the Detroit club to put out and I'm really glad to have him on our side," said Rowe. "I was hunting with him in Arkansas this winter before the deal with Cleveland and I told him I had a good notion to shoot him just so I wouldn't have to pitch against him again next summer."

PURPLE BOXERS IN FINAL DRILL

Boys' High's boxers will hold a final workout this afternoon in the Henry Grady gymnasium in preparation for Friday night's scrap with Charlotte's undefeated team.

Boys' High won its opening match with G. M. A. 5-1-2 to 3-1-2, last Thursday night, but Coach Draper wasn't entirely satisfied with the results. Several of the boys apparently were not in the best of condition and to overcome that handicap special attention has been given to conditioning this week.

Fabyan Is Denied Divorce Petition

SALEM, Mass., Feb. 14.—(P)—Judge George A. Costello denied today the petition of Sarah Palfrey Fabyan, tennis star, for a divorce from Marshall Fabyan on grounds of cruelty. The court contended the allegation of cruelty was not sustained. The couple was married in 1934.

Riggs Rallies to Win Three-Set Encounter

DAYTONA BEACH, Feb. 14.—(P)—Second round matches in men's singles were completed according to form in the South Atlantic tennis tournament today, although top-seeded Bobby Riggs, of Chicago, came close to bowing his way out of competition when he was pushed to three sets by big John Foreman, of Chicago. Riggs won, 6-2, 5-7, 6-3 after being down 1-3 in the final set. Only seeded player to fall was Tommy Kelly, Portland, Ore., who was seeded seventh. He lost to second-seeded Elwood Cooke, also of Portland, 6-2, 6-3.

Expect 140 Nominees For Kentucky Derby

Record List Is Predicted With Entry Close Scheduled For Midnight Tonight.

By GLENN RAMSEY.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 14.—(P)—A record list of nominees is predicted for the first $75,000 Kentucky Derby on May 4.

Nominations for the sixty-sixth running of the country's top-flight race for three-year-olds close tomorrow midnight, and that means midnight wherever you live—because entry letters postmarked before the witching hour will be accepted at Churchill Downs.

Last year 115 horses were nominated. Colonel Matt Winn, boss of the Downs, expects about 140 to try in 1946 for the biggest pot of gold—plus a gold cup—ever offered the classic winner. Up to this year the cash was $50,000 added.

Boasting the cologne's prediction are two factors:

1. Breeder and trainers share in the purse for the first time.
2. Cancellation of many important races in England and on the continent because of the war is expected to develop a heavy invasion of foreign thoroughbreds. The Downs management mailed blanks some time ago to various agencies in Great Britain and Ireland.

There wasn't the slightest chance of getting Colonel Winn to break precedent and give a hint on the names of any of the lead-

PRICE REDUCTION

ON IRISH AMERICAN WHISKEY

We recently received the largest cargo of 20-year-old pot still whiskey to arrive in America since Repeal. It represents only a small part of the vast supplies of choice whiskeys owned by this company here and abroad—whiskeys distilled and contracted for a long time ago at highly advantageous prices... The resultant savings are now passed on to the public in this price reduction—the first in the history of this great whiskey.

Dodgers, With 11 Ex-American Leaguers, Threat in National

BROOKLYN FLAG WOULD LOWER LEAGUE RATING

Vosmik, Cullenbine, Wyatt, Ferrell Came From Juniors Loop.

By WHITNEY MARTIN.
NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—(AP)—It's only fair to warn the other National league clubs that there is dirty work afoot over the river in Brooklyn. Larry MacPhail is sneaking in an American league team as a ringer.

With the purchase of Joe Vosmik from the Red Sox, the Brooklyn club's roster now includes the names of at least 11 men who have served time in the American league, and should the Dodgers by chance win the National league pennant the league as a whole would find itself in a rather uncomfortable position.

MacPhail and his manager, Leo Durocher, himself a former American leaguer, last year took a conglomerate of youth and age, castoffs and showoffs, and ended up by taking third place.

They laughed every time MacPhail made a deal, but they do not laugh now. He does about everything with money but waste it, and the general idea now is that if he put up cold cash for Vosmik, and lured Roy Cullenbine into the fold with a $25,000 bonus, maybe he saw something that rival clubs couldn't discern.

SALON'S REST.
At any rate, he's turning the Dodgers into a sailor's rest for American leaguers, with the only entrance requirement an affidavit from a junior league club to the effect that the applicant was worthy, but had outlived his usefulness.

Durocher was with the Yankees in 1925, 1928 and 1929 before going over to the National league as a member of the Cincinnati Reds. Vosmik has served all his major league time in the American league, starting with Cleveland in 1930 and progressing through St. Louis and Boston, although the word "progressing" might be a little misleading in speaking of St. Louis.

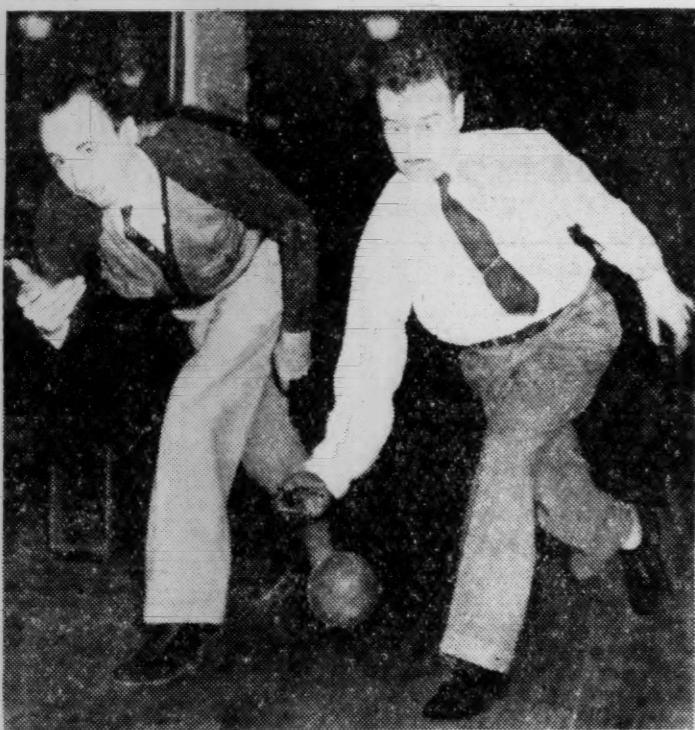

The other more recent acquisitions, Cullenbine, was set free by Commissioner Lewis when he decided that the Detroit club was covering not wisely nor very well. Melo Almada, outfielder, at various times was a member of the Red Sox, Senators and Browns, and Whitlow Wyatt, for several years the railroads' best customer between the majors and minors, was with the Tigers, White Sox and Indians before coming to roost at the Brooklyn home.

FIRST WITH YANKS.
Vito Tamulis started his major league career with the Yankees in 1935, and later was with the Browns, and he couldn't get any further down than that without dropping clean out of the league, which he did.

Then there is Wes Ferrell, who started with the Indians in 1927, later was with the Red Sox, Senators and Yankees, he was considered completely out of the picture until MacPhail signed him up this year.

Luke Hamlin a pretty fair country hurler with the Dodgers last year, came up to Detroit from Beaumont in 1933, and young Carl Williams Doyle, coming up from Memphis, was with Connie Mack briefly in 1935 and 1936. Louis Berger, another bouncing baby of the American league, hopped from the Indians to the White Sox to the Red Sox before MacPhail decided to take him into the fold.

All in all, it would appear that the wise man of Brooklyn has decided to take the advice if you can't lick 'em, join 'em. Either that or the American league is unloading some ballast with the idea of committing a little sabotage, an act which, considering the last World Series, would seem quite unnecessary.

DEFEND TITLE—Walter Lawson (left) and A. J. (Speedy) Sossong, who will defend their men's title in the Georgia open doubles tourney at the Downtown Alleys Saturday. The tournament has been held at Columbus the past three years.

GEORGIA BREEZE PERFORMS WELL

Monie Ferst's Dog Strong Contender in United States Trials.

HOLLY SPRINGS, Miss., Feb. 14.—The quality and class of the thousand-dollar all-age stake of the United States bird trials which began here Monday, hovered on the brink of the sensational today. The qualifying heats of an hour were finished and Lester's Enjoy Wahoo, owned by Dr. B. H. Lester, of Birmingham, Ala., and Norias Aeroflow, owned by W. C. Teagle, of New York, were heads and shoulders above the field in this department.

Brought back in the hour-and-half finals, Wahoo ran off and Aeroflow failed to connect with game. With these two class dogs failing to score the quality of the stake has taken a nose dive.

An Atlanta, Ga., dog saved the afternoon from complete disaster. The Georgia Breeze, a setter, owned by M. A. Ferst, ran brilliantly in his last half hour and had two bevy finds.

The judges, however, need two others to complete the placings and have ordered four more dogs on the grounds for tomorrow. They are Amazon's Village Girl, owned by H. E. McGonigal, of Kokomo, Ind.; King's Genius, owned by C. R. Dawley, of Cincinnati, Ohio; Spartan's Flare, owned by B. W. Norris, West Point, Miss.; and Spunky Creek Nina, owned by L. A. Herring, of Milwaukee, Wis.

Racing Roundup

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 14.—Romp home to a two-length victory in one-fifth of a second off the track record, Victor Emanuel's Omission today captured the featured three-furlong Seminole Stakes for 2-year-old colts and geldings at Hialeah park.

Clocked in 33 1-5, the dark brown son of Jack-Neglect broke alertly, ran straight down the inside lane and drew away easily at the finish to reward his backers with $380 to $2.

String Music, owned by John Hay Whitney, was second, a half length ahead of Oh Oh, owned by W. E. Boening. All in that field, excepted the small field.

The first of three graded handicaps—The Class "C"—at six and a half furlongs, went to Sassy Lady in the fourth. Held back of the pace in the early going, she took the lead at the stretch to win by a head over Coma No and pay $7.20. Doubt Not was a poor third.

By a neck's margin, Many Stings won over Armor Bearer to take the Grade "A" fifth event and pay $6.00. Inacwela, coupled with Unerring and favorite, was beaten five lengths for the mile. All in that field, excepted the small field.

The Graded "B" handicap went to High One, priced at $9.90, which drove home a length ahead of Royal Alan after laying off the pace in the early going. Visigoth was third.

DOUBLES EVENT TO DRAW STARS HERE SATURDAY

Lawson and Sossong Will Defend Their Georgia Open Crown.

The four annual Georgia open doubles is scheduled to draw a large and fast field of duckpin bowlers when it opens on the downtown alleys this Saturday afternoon, February 17, at 2 o'clock. Bowlers from centers throughout the state are expected here for this annual pin classic.

Walter E. Lawson, who is hitting the pins for a new all-time high average of 123 in league competition, will be paired with Aloysius Sossong as they attempt to defend their title in this event, which they won at Columbus last year, with the new tourney record combined count of 2,421.

Joe Chiambliss and E. L. Pearce, runners-up last year, will bowl together and make a bid for first-place honors.

W. F. Lowry and Lowry Whisenant, winners of the Georgia open doubles tournament in 1938 at Columbus, will be teamed and should be one of the "favorite" entries.

Others who are signed in the men's division are Wayne Harper and V. L. McCord, Alan Liebler and Jack Pearce, L. B. Outler and George Tyler, Bill Pelot and George McGuire. Early entries in the women's division include Ruth Jones and Johnnie Carter, Nell Shropshire and Grace Cannington, Kathryn Herder and Emily Kimbro, Lucile Rawlins and Rose McGuire.

Others bowlers from Columbus, Macon, Rome, Athens, Augusta, Cedartown and Chattahoochee are expected to be "on the firing line" Saturday.

The men are slated to roll 10 games, with five games scheduled at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and five more scheduled at 7:30 o'clock the same evening.

Entry fees, both of which include cost of games, are $3 per person ($6 per team) for the men and $1.50 per person ($3 per couple) for the women. Guaranteed prize money includes $50 in the men's division and $25 in the women's tournament. Entry may be made right up to game time at 2 o'clock.

Fort McPherson Bumps Texaco Oil Five, 55-21

Fort McPherson's basketball team defeated Texaco Oil, 55 to 21, in a wild, free scoring contest.

Texaco led 25 to 23 at the half, but Fort Mac came back strong and led most of the way in the second half.

Gresham scored 19 points for the winners, while Gabriel's 28 points paced the losers.

Ben Brown Faces Test In Florida

Atlanta Boxer Fights Illinois Lighthweight on Friday Night.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 14.—(AP)—Ben Brown, Atlanta middleweight, seeks his third straight win in light - heavy-weight ranks here Friday night, meeting Jimmy Sheppard, of Springfield, Ill.

Brown and Sheppard are contenders in the American Legion's 175-pound elimination tournament in progress here.

Brown has not. BEN BROWN, a serious bid for light-heavy honors since Gus Lesnevich out-pointed him at Miami two years ago. Sam Sobel, Brown's manager, said his fighter is more seasoned now and is ready for the best light-heavyweights in the country, including Billy Conn.

Comparative bouts indicate Brown is in for rugged opposition with Sheppard. Brown won a close 10-round decision from Pietro Georgi, Los Angeles veteran, here two weeks ago. Sheppard kayoed Georgi in six rounds earlier in the season.

SMITHIES WORK ON GRID MONDAY

Tech High's spring football drills will start Monday afternoon at Piedmont park with Coaches Tom Alexander and Hub Dows in charge.

Coach Sidney Scarborough will continue with the basketball squad until the close of the annual G. I. A. tournament March 2 and will then devote most of his time to baseball.

The Smithies expect to put in some 30 or 40 sessions and the coaches Wednesday forecast some 35 candidates would be out for the team next week.

Tech High will suffer heavily from graduation and will of necessity have to rebuild the squad.

Two Albany Field Trials To Be Run on Schedule

TORNADO FAILS TO SHIFT DATES FOR DOG EVENTS

Southern Amateur Starts Monday; Barns Kennels Undamaged.

ALBANY, Ga., Feb. 14.—(AP)—Despite Saturday's tornado here, two field trials slated for Albany next week will be staged as originally planned, authorities announced today.

J. R. Sealy, of Cottonwood, Ala., president of the Southern Amateur Field Trials Club, conferred last night with Francis Shurling, state director of government records and co-ordinator of agencies here, and C. O. Wright, city manager.

The result of this conference was that the authorities decided to go through with not only the southern amateur trials, beginning on L. D. Johnson's Wildfair plantation next Monday, but also the southeastern states amateur trials, which start immediately following those of the southern amateur.

Shurling saw no reason why the trials could not be held as scheduled, since the work in the city is progressing rapidly. He urged the importance of returning to normalcy.

At the scheduled time for the trials, 75 per cent of the government representatives will be away, thereby allowing hotel accommodations for all visitors. The trials, Shurling pointed out, provide a certain amount of income to the people of Albany, and all income is sorely needed following the disaster.

City Manager Wright advised that city utilities will be ample and streets cleared. Yesterday, Mr. Sealy said he inspected the stables of the field trials site and found that all out-of-town horses can be cared for.

Ed Farrior, field marshal, found 34 coverts of birds on courses which have been marked out," Sealy asserted.

Judges will be Roy Persons, of Monticello, and George Stanberry, of Jefferson City, Tenn. Stanberry was a judge at the Waynesboro trials and bird-dog men agreed the judging there was excellent.

Several members of the Atlanta Field Trial Club are planning to have entries in the Southern Amateur.

Major Trammell Scott, president of the regional trials, said last night plans were going as usual for the event. Ralph McGill, vice president of the Southern Amateur, who was in Albany Saturday, pointed out that the tornado did not strike the field trials club's barns or kennels. He reported field facilities will be adequate, as the two largest hotels were only slightly damaged.

Harry Cooper Starts Comeback on Tuesday

Veteran Golfer Must Use Lighter Clubs After Dance Floor Casualty.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 14.—(AP)—Lighthorse Harry Cooper, of Chicago, took to the links today after a three-month layoff caused by a dance floor casualty and announced the adversity from musical swing had not hampered his golf swing.

Although forced to use a new and lighter set of clubs because of weakness from a pulled ligament in his left hand, the veteran who has been winning big-time tournaments for 17 years declared, "I'm hitting them as well as ever."

The Coopers motored here from California and established residence a week before the touring golfers move in from Texas for the $10,000 New Orleans Open, which Harry won in 1938. Play starts next Thursday.

The baldish and friendly Harry was dancing with his comely wife when, at the end of the number, they tried a fancy flourish. Mrs. Cooper slipped; Harry reached quickly to catch her; she seized his thumb. Her fall was broken, but hubby was on the shelf for three months while the other top-notchers were on the lucrative winter circuit.

Harry lost no time after arriving here in getting onto the city park links, where the four-day tourney will be played, and trying a new set of 13 1-4-ounce clubs—an ounce and a quarter less than his old ones.

He made a par 37 on nine holes, then went seven more, shooting two balls on each hole, and reported he was "about even with par," despite a high wind.

"Everything went fine," he announced. "My hand didn't bother me a bit. I was hitting them as well as ever. The only thing I'm afraid of is getting into bad trouble and having to blast my way out."

Harry declared he was still out after the elusive National Open championship, which has barely eluded him several times to win him recognition as a hard luck player.

"I don't feel I've been unlucky, though," he said. "I think I've gotten along very well. And it's better to go on for a long time and not win the National than to win it and then fade out."

Harry has not only gone a long time since his first major league triumph in the Texas Professional in 1923, but reached the heights in 1937 by winning seven tourneys, finishing as the nation's top-money winner and with the best season's scoring record, and receiving the Vardon trophy for his extended performance.

He takes over a new job, professional at Chicago's Northmoor Country Club, April 15.

3 New Fives Enter State Tournament

Tampa Chosen as Site of All-Star Baseball Contest Sunday, March 17

4 MORE PLACES
WILL BE FILLED
BEFORE FRIDAY

Clayton County Mountaineers To Compete at Fulton Gym.

Georgia's second sectional basketball tournament, and by far the most outstanding meet ever attempted in Atlanta outside the national tournament of state champions, is rapidly filling the 16 teams bracket. With the addition of three new entries from outside Atlanta, the total list now numbers 12, with but four more places open. The deadline for entries closes Friday.

This gathering of cage teams will be staged at the Fulton High school gymnasium beginning Monday night and running through Thursday when the winning team will be crowned, and receive the entrance right into the American Basketball Congress gathering the last week of February.

Included in the new squads which applied for admittance is the Clayton Mountaineer Club, of Clayton, Ga. The members of the team are all active in the civic club and play for the enjoyment they get out of their contact with other quints. They are well equipped in all departments of the game, as well as being the most colorful team in the state as far as uniforms are concerned. Being from the mountain section they have taken the mountaineer characters of a well-known magazine and their equipment carries an emblem of the typical mountaineer lean and gaunt leaning on the old squirrel rifle standing in front of a lazy old man of the hills who prefers to sit in a dilapidated chair with a jug of "mountain dew" dangling from his arm.

The team averages well over 6 feet in height, and from the imposing record they have hung up this season, this club should be one of the favored five which will make the final night's decision is reached.

Teams expecting to fill the remaining four open spaces in the bracket are requested to mail their entrance fee and list of eligible players to State Commissioner Johnny Phillips, 118 Luckie street, before the deadline of 12 o'clock Friday is reached. No entry will be accepted after that hour.

UPSY-DAISY—Eleanor Kent, left, star of last night's battle between the varsity and alumnae squads at N. A. P. S., makes a valiant effort to score a field goal as Nancy Wham reaches up to guard the ball. With back to camera is Betty Mae Baugh. Patty Evans, at right, is ready to play the ball off the backboard. The varsity eked out a 38-36 victory.

PACIFIC COAST MAY SEND ACES FOR STAR GAME

Celebrities To Attend Tilt for Benefit of Finn Relief.

By GAYLE TALBOT.

TAMPA, Fla., Feb. 14.—(AP)—Tampa today was chosen as the site of the all-star game between two picked National and American league teams for the benefit of the Finnish relief fund, and Sunday, March 17, was selected as the date.

Tampa was chosen over Miami and St. Petersburg largely because of the greater seating capacity of its ball park, which is in the neighborhood of 9,000. This includes about 1,000 box seats, which will be sold for whatever the traffic will stand. Temporary seating will be strung out the length of the foul lines, bringing the seating capacity possibly to 20,000.

So far as possible, the game will be a duplicate of the all-star game played regularly at midseason. Commissioner Landis will attend, and former President Hoover, who is head of the Finnish relief fund, is counted upon to throw out the first ball. It is anticipated that all exhibition games scheduled in Florida for March 17 will be cancelled, though this has not been officially promised.

There has yet been no definite decision about the make-up of the two clubs. The original idea was that players would be chosen only from teams training in Florida, but the latest plan is to bring in stars from clubs training on the Pacific coast by airplane.

KENTUCKY DERBY DEADLINE NEARS

ing candidates already nominated. The cologne's winner, too much like looking in the box."

But the grapevine information bureau let it be known that Colonel E. R. Bradley, without a runner in the past two derbies, hadn't changed his mind about naming Bimblech as his No. 1 contender. He has won more derbies—four—than any other owner, sometime ago predicted not only that Bimblech would win this year's romp, but the Bradley stable would have the second and third horse as well.

There didn't seem to be any doubt about Arnold Haney's Roman Flag, winner of the Breeder's Futurity; Anthony Pelletier's Andy K. and C. V. Whitney's Carver Pigeon.

Mrs. J. Kaiser was alone in winning the weekly blind bogey morning on the Candler Park course. Mrs. Kaiser's winning score was an 80. It was the first tournament that members of the Candler Park Women's Golf Association have sponsored in several weeks, due to unfavorable weather.

A one-day Washington's birthday tournament has been planned for next week. Luncheon will be served at the club immediately following the 18-hole tourney.

Play in the Druid Hills Women's Golf Association will be resumed Friday morning at 9 o'clock.

F. E. MURPHY DIES WAS A P. DIRECTOR

Head of Minneapolis Papers Crusaded for Diversified Agriculture.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—(P)—Frederick E. Murphy, a farm boy who became a nationally known newspaper publisher and crusaded throughout the nation for his youthful ideals of diversified agriculture, died today. He was 67.

Death came to the executive head of the Minneapolis Tribune newspaper and director of the Associated Press from complications growing out of a cold today in the Waldorf Astoria hotel. He was here on business.

Leaders in the nation's business, political and labor life joined in paying tribute to Murphy. Typical of the comment was that of former President Herbert Hoover, who said:

"Mr. Murphy has not been alone a publisher of a great newspaper. He has been a pioneer in the development of the whole northwest. And he has served the nation in a score of directions. His passing is a great loss to our country."

President Roosevelt recognized the agricultural leadership of the newspaper publisher in 1933 and named him America's delegate to the World Wheat Conference in Geneva and London.

The body was to be taken to Minneapolis late today. His wife survives. Funeral arrangements have not yet been announced.

ATLANTA VISITOR FATALLY STRICKEN

Miss Lillian Wentsch, 25, Music Teacher, Collapses in Restaurant.

Miss Lillian Wentsch, 25, music instructor at Lander college of Greenwood, S. C., collapsed in a downtown restaurant yesterday afternoon and died at Grady hospital about two hours later without regaining consciousness.

Attending physicians said a cerebral hemorrhage apparently was the cause.

Miss Wentsch, who was in Atlanta on a visit, was a native of New Haven, Conn., and had been connected with the Lander College faculty for the past two years. Known as a brilliant musician, she was a graduate of the Yale University School of Music and also had studied abroad.

In addition to her college work she was organist at the Greenwood Presbyterian church and also was a member of the Atlanta Guild of the Church of the Resurrection there. She formerly served as organist at one of the biggest churches in New Haven.

Her only survivor is a brother, Martin Wentsch. Funeral arrangements are to be announced by H. M. Patterson & Son.

SCOUTS TO 'ADOPT' CRIPPLED CHILDREN

Plan Is Formed at Meeting of Adults Interested in Work.

Boy Scouts will "adopt" the Crippled Children Society of Fulton County under a plan outlined last night at a meeting of the Scouts Club, composed of adults interested in scouting work.

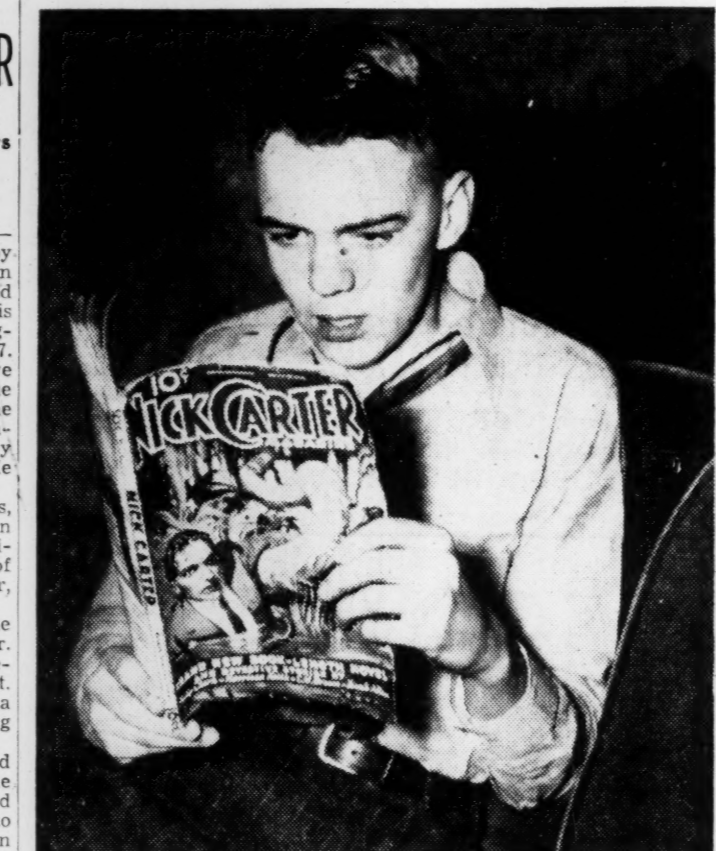

C. F. Spagh, president of the club, presided. Speakers were J. Clayton Burke, secretary of the Crippled Children Society, and Charles Ruth Campbell, secretary of the Fulton county group; Herman Chafin, J. S. Roberts, Ed Epstein, Weaver Marr, Walter Strauss, German refugee, and David I. (Red) Barron.

More than 150 persons attended the meeting. Each Boy Scout in Fulton county will donate 5 cents toward "adopting" a youngster, according to the plan.

CONYERS FUNERAL PLANNED FOR EX-GEORGIAN

Funeral services for W. F. Stowers, of Tampa, former Georgian who died Tuesday at his Florida home, will be held at 11 o'clock this morning at the First Baptist church in Conyers, Ga. The Rev. M. A. Cooper will officiate.

A native of Conyers, Mr. Stowers moved to Tampa in 1902 and for 27 years was a member of the fire department there. He was 68.

Recapturing the Old-Time 'Carter' Thrills

Remember when boys had to sneak off to read those Nick Carter thrillers? Here a modern young man, George Stewart, sits absorbed with one of those Carter stories, re-enacting a scene which many of Atlanta's business leaders enacted when they were boys not so many years ago.

Old 'Nick Carter' Volumes Dug Out;
The Most Ancient Will Bring $100

Constitution Offers That Amount for Magazine of Earliest Date, in Connection With Rialto Film; Four $25 Prizes Also Await Contestants.

"My lady shrugged her shapely shoulders like a spendthrift and an aristocrat."

"Your company will give me infinite pleasure," declared Nick Carter affably.

Do these lines bring back memories? Memories of smuggled dime thrillers and happy hours spent in pursuing them safe from the prying eyes of parents.

They should, for they're quoted from one of the most famous of all thrillers, "Nick Carter." It's been a long time since the old magazine was published, but many a man can remember the thrill of buying each new copy.

The Nick Carter contest editor of The Constitution would like to see some of the old copies of the famous Nick Carter detective magazine. For the oldest copy submitted, he will pay $100 in cash.

NAVY AND ECONOMY COLLIDE HEAD-ON

House Naval Committee Votes $655,000,000 After $111,699,699 Slash.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—(P)—Congressional economy and naval expansion programs collided head-on today. The house naval committee unanimously approved a two-year $655,000,000 fleet increase just one day after another house committee had cut $111,699,699 from the navy's funds for the coming year.

Contending that the United States must consider the possibility that "a number of potential enemies" might join forces against it in the future, the naval committee indorsed a bill to authorize construction within the next two years of 21 additional warships, 22 auxiliary vessels and about 1,000 more airplanes. The measure carried no appropriation. If it passed, Congress would be asked later to provide the money.

Less than 24 hours earlier, the house appropriations committee slashed President Roosevelt's budget estimates for the navy for the year starting July 1, from $1,078,420,000 to $668,720,000 and asserted that the navy's needs could be "adequately met" with that sum.

There were indications that the navy would seek about $19,100,000 additional at this session of Congress to start work on the expansion program. Chairman Vinson, Democrat, Georgia, of the house naval committee, said he hoped to get the expansion measure before the house early in March.

At the COURTHOUSE

Ben Hall, 25-year-old former Atlanta lottery racketeer, who recently outdistanced County Policemen John Carter and W. J. Anderson in a chase on Central avenue, yesterday was ordered to pay a fine of $175 or spend 15 months on public works. Hall pleaded guilty to charges of speeding and reckless driving.

Five Negroes pleaded guilty in Fulton superior court yesterday to charges of burglary and received sentences ranging from two years to eight years from Judge Hugh M. Dorsey. They were: Buddy Lane, two years; Howard Adams, three years; Harold Martin, three years; Archie Jenkins, four years; and Robert Jackson, eight years. Jackson's record showed three previous felony cases.

There's no excuse for driving

60 miles an hour, Judge John McClelland of Fulton criminal court told Raymond Parks, 26, yesterday in ordering him to pay a fine of $150 or spend 12 months on public works for making that speed on Fourteenth street. "You must have been speeding just for pleasure," the Judge added. It was a second time that Parks has been charged with speeding.

Howard White, deputy clerk, Fulton criminal court, was all smiles yesterday. It was his 45th birthday and he was being kidded by fellow employees for being a "valentine baby."

All county high school principals will meet at the court house tomorrow afternoon, Jere Wells, county superintendent of schools, said yesterday. It will be a regular routine session. High school principals will meet at 2 o'clock and grade school principals at 3 o'clock.

Miss Ocie Matthews, clerk, county school department, has been removed to Emory University hospital for observation. She has been ill for a week.

Albert Gossett and Dean Paden, members of the county board of public welfare; Henry Mays, county welfare director; and County Commissioner I. Gloer Hailey will go to Birmingham tomorrow for a study of the county welfare program there. Birmingham's relief problems are similar to those of Atlanta, it was pointed out.

Burglars entered the home of Luke Appling, 3215 North avenue, Tuesday night, county police reported yesterday. Appling, Chicago White Sox baseball player, is vacationing in Florida. Neighbors who have been looking at the home discovered the burglary late yesterday. No estimate of the loot was available, police said.

J. W. Simmons, Fulton superior court clerk, will try his hand at Bible teaching Sunday. He will speak to members of the Men's Community Bible Class of the St. Paul Methodist church.

Members of the County Board of Public Welfare are scheduled to confer with a committee of the grand jury today over the question of the 1940 tax rate for relief. Members of the welfare board will urge a three mill rate, Albert Gossett, a member, said.

Comic valentines were plentiful in the court house yesterday and the favorite diversion of the day was to identify "the senders." Charles Paschall, chief deputy superior court clerk, came in for considerable ribbing for one he received. It portrayed a so-called "wind bag."

NO TAG EXTENSION, SAYS GRADY HEAD

Deadline for Purchases of Georgia Licenses Is Mid-night Tomorrow.

Tardy tag buyers will get no extension of the deadline, Governor T. Grady Head has his way. The deadline is midnight February 16.

Head said yesterday he would not recommend any extension, although he said it would be within the power of the Governor to grant a few more days of grace. The Governor, however, was not expected to extend the deadline. "Automobile owners have had 45 days in which to get their license plates," Head asserted. "I think that is sufficient. If a man gets around to buying a tag during that length of time he shouldn't own an automobile."

There was no unusual rush at the tag windows in the capitol yesterday, despite the fact the buyers had only two days to get their tags. The deadline is midnight today and tomorrow—in which to purchase their plates. Ed Williams, director of the motor vehicle division, estimated there were still about 125,000 automobile owners in the state who had neglected to get their 1940 plates.

'ELIJAH' ORATORIO TO BE HEARD HERE

Performance Tomorrow Night Features Evans.

Mendelssohn's oratorio, "Elijah," will be given a performance at the Atlanta Woman's Club auditorium at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow night, with Wilbur Evans, American baritone, singing the part of "Elijah," and Hugh Hodgson conducting the ensemble of over 200 musicians.

This will be the second Georgia performance, the first having been given by the same group at the University of Georgia in Athens last night.

The ensemble includes the choir of St. Luke's church in Atlanta, the Boys and Girls' Glee Clubs, and the Little Symphony orchestra of the University of Georgia. Singing solo parts will be Minna Hecker, soprano; Margaret Fisher, contralto; C. E. Drummond, tenor, and Coleman Kimbro, baritone, soloists of St. Luke's choir, and Frank Sule, tenor, of the university.

COAL MEN TO FIGHT MINIMUM SALE PRICE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—(AP)—A fight in the courts against proposed minimum prices for sales of soft coal at the mines was indicated today by operators who once before carried their battle against the Guffey act to the supreme court—and won.

The statements by Herbert Jacobsi vice president and general counsel for the Carter Coal Company and H. R. Hawthorne, of the Pocahontas Corporation—both opponents of the Guffey act—were made before examiners who will fix the minimum prices.

Jacobi said that regardless of the decision of the examiners, he would appeal to Director Howard Gray, of the coal division. Then, he added, he intended to appeal to Secretary of Interior Ickes.

Mother's Kiss Encourages Accused Slayer

Carl Hubert Erickson, 25, put his arm around his gray-haired mother, Mrs. Truda Erickson, as she gave him a kiss of encouragement before opening arguments began yesterday in his Chicago murder trial. Erickson, who has been rated as a "supermentality," is charged with an attempted "perfect crime" in the slaying of his one-time friend, Herbert Wolff, 28.

AROUND ATLANTA

Weather today will be fair and warmer, the weather man says, but this morning will see a low of near 24 degrees. However, the wind that chilled everybody yesterday will be gone, and the highest temperature expected today will be around 55 degrees. Yesterday's high and low were 40 and 28.

More than 100 prominent DeKalb county business and professional men will be guests of the Atlanta Elks Lodge, 1602, at 7 o'clock tonight in the Candler hotel. Judge Frank Guess, exalted ruler of the lodge, said that speakers would be Judge John S. McClelland, a national Elks officer; Clayton Burke, secretary of the Atlanta lodge; and H. O. Hubert Jr., deputy exalted ruler of Georgia West.

Board of Directors of the Georgia Junior Chamber of Commerce will meet at 11 o'clock Monday morning at the Piedmont hotel, according to Wiley L. Moore Jr., president. The meeting will be attended by the 35 presidents and the other officers of the Georgia Jaycees.

Bank clearings totaled $9,800,000 yesterday as compared with $9,900,000 on the corresponding day of last year, the Atlanta

STATE CLAIMS MAN KILLED BEST FRIEND

Defense Maintains Garage Worker Reconstructed Crime for Girl.

CHICAGO, Feb. 14.—(AP)—Carl Hubert Erickson listened without trace of emotion today while the prosecution at his trial branded him "the murderer of his best friend."

The defendant, listed as a "supermentality," calmly heard Assistant State's Attorney Julius Sherwin outline the state's version of the gun death of Herbert Wolff last September 28. Sherwin contended that Erickson "brooded" because his friend Wolff had taken his job in a garage and that he stole into the garage at night and killed the sleeping victim.

Investigators arranged a meeting last December between Erickson and Marjorie Wells, Sherwin told the jurors, and subsequently Erickson was seized and informed:

"The woman has told everything. You'd better come clean." The arrest was made, Sherwin said, after Erickson described the murder to Marjorie as though he had been there.

Defense Attorney Samuel A. Hoffman denied that Erickson slew Wolff and maintained that his client had reconstructed the crime for Miss Wells with information he had obtained from investigators.

'THELMA' SUES WIFE, 'CECIL' FOR DIVORCE

Coweta County Couple With Unusual Names Bewilders Court Justices.

Supreme court justices were slightly baffled when they were confronted with a case in which Thelma Alford, a man, was suing his wife, Cecil Alford, for divorce. Could it be possible that there had been a switch in names?

They found the names were right, however, and added this explanation in their opinion: "We are assured by counsel at the bar that there is no mistake in the names as they thus appear in the record."

Justice Warren Grice took occasion to give a discourse on "nagging," one of the charges in the suit. He said:

"Nagging carries the idea of continuity. One or two petty fault-finders may be a degree annoying, but it is the persistence of the fretting that causes the real vexation."

The case was appealed from the superior court of Coweta county.

J. St. Clair Favrot Jr., former Atlanta newspaper man, has been appointed United States commissioner for the Baton Rouge district court, eastern district of Louisiana. Favrot, 33 years old, studied law after working as a newspaper man in several cities, and has been practicing since 1938 in Baton Rouge, his native city. He was appointed by Judge Wayne G. Borah.

National Labor Relations Board yesterday in Washington ordered an election within 30 days to determine if the employees of the Standard Hat Company, of Atlanta, wish to be represented in collective bargaining by the United Hatters, Cap and Millinery Workers' Union, which is affiliated with the AFL.

H. Carl Wolf, 540 Peachtree Battle avenue, yesterday was elected first vice president of the Southern Gas Association at the concluding session of its convention in Hot Springs, Ark.

Dr. Milton Beckwith will speak before the Kirkwood Civilian Club at 7:30 o'clock tonight at 1908 Boulevard drive on "Business Life in China."

Mrs. Jennie Barge, 75, of Egan Park, was in a critical condition at Grady hospital yesterday where she is being treated for burns sustained when she rescued her grandchild whose clothes had caught fire near an open grate.

Atlanta Kennel Club yesterday announced that James W. Trullinger, of Pittsburgh, would be chief judge at its annual show, March 29-30. Other judges will be M. P. Matthews, of New Orleans, and J. J. Martin, of Charlotte.

Bernie F. Wilson has been elected president of the Yaarab Temple Shrine band. Other officers are Richard Engelbert, secretary; A. J. Garing, director, and Cal C. Barber, assistant director.

Reunion of the 325th ambulance company of the first World War will be held at 6:30 o'clock Saturday night in the Atlanta hotel, President Wallace W. Rhodes said yesterday.

ATLANTA IS CLEARED IN CHILD'S AUTO DEATH

STATESBORO, Ga., Feb. 14.—(AP)—Solicitor General W. G. Neville said today investigation indicated James T. Clarke, of Atlanta, was not at fault in a fatal accident here Monday.

Neville said Clarke was detained briefly for investigation after his automobile struck 6-year-old Louise Miller shortly after she had alighted from a school bus. No charges were placed, however, and the Atlanta was released after inquiry indicated the accident was unavoidable.

At the STATE CAPITOL

L. R. Siebert, secretary of the board of regents, was having difficulties yesterday in calling the name of his efficient secretary. Last week end she left the office as Miss Rosie Voight. Yesterday she came back as Mrs. Charles Gilmore. Siebert complained that he just couldn't get used to calling her Mrs. Gilmore. The couple was married last Saturday afternoon. Gilmore is a reporter for The Constitution.

E. S. Papp, president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, will address the annual meeting of the Georgia Swine Breeders' Association at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning at the Georgia Experiment station. Approximately 60 members of the association from throughout the state will attend.

Belmont Dennis, publisher of The Covington News, was at the capitol yesterday conferring with officials of the State Department of Agriculture. Dennis said his wife, who has been in Emory University hospital for the past six weeks, had been removed to their home in Covington.

State Comptroller W. B. Harrison had on his desk yesterday an unusual letter from a senior at the University of Illinois who was applying for a job. The youth, Shelby North, of Urbana, Ill., outlined his qualifications and gave his scholastic record which was higher than the average. The letter was said to be one of the best ever received at the office. Harrison wrote the youth he was filing the application and expressed admiration for so "sterling and typical an American boy of high ambition."

A. R. Wright, deputy insurance commissioner, was making a strong bid for the title of best dressed man at the capitol yesterday. He was wearing an eye-catching tuxedo of mixed colors, a brown plaid tie and handkerchief to match. He humorously remarked that it was his "race-track outfit."

Columbus Roberts, commissioner of agriculture, looked out of his window yesterday and saw a sight that reminded him of grain fields. What he saw through the window was the capitol lawn, cloaked in a mantle of bright green grass. This cloak, he pointed out, was blighted green because of January's blanket of snow, which kept the grass from being killed. The same is true, he added, of grain fields throughout the state.

George Doss, of Canton, attended a meeting yesterday of the Georgia Public Service Commission. He was seeking lower freight rates on short hauls in his section of the state.

Director H. P. Stuckey, of the Georgia Experiment Station, reported to the board of regents yesterday that the new hybrid collard developed at the experiment station came through the recent freeze with only slight damage. This cabbage-collard is the result of research to develop a variety of collard that can withstand winter temperature.

Charlie Head, chairman of the Cobb county board of commissioners, was a visitor to the capitol yesterday.

Marvin Griffin, aide to Governor Rivers, who has been ill for the past several days, was reported improved yesterday. He is expected to return to the executive offices in a few days.

At the CITY HALL

Five new school teachers yesterday joined the Atlanta public school system when the board of education concurred in nominations offered by Dr. Willis A. Sutton, superintendent. The new teachers are Mrs. J. R. Beville and Misses Nora B. Emerson, Janet Jenkins and Eva Saywell, and Hazeline Collier, Negro.

Councilman E. A. Minor, chairman of the ordinance committee, of council, yesterday called a meeting for 3 o'clock this afternoon to consider among other things a proposal by Councilman Frank Wilson making it mandatory that the city advertise for competitive bids for all city contracts in excess of $500.

The regular meeting of the zoning sub-committee of the city planning commission was deferred yesterday until February 28, in announcing the postponement, Walter S. McNeal Jr., chairman, said several members of the group are out of the city.

Three attaches of the Atlanta school department have married recently, according to departmental records. They are Miss Dorothy Hinman, who became Mrs. Dorothy Cantrell; Mrs. Dorothy Beckley, who became Mrs. Dorothy Rainey, and Miss Elizabeth Wallace, who became Mrs. Elizabeth W. Rawlins.
